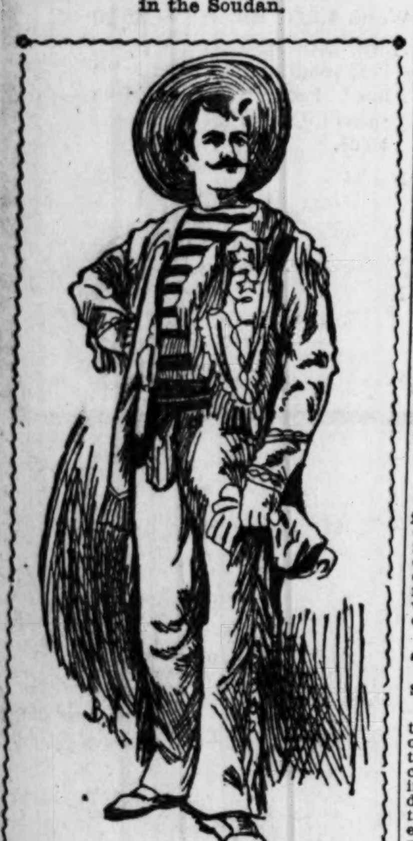
AVENGING HER HUSBAND'S DEATH

Marquise de Mores Trailed Arab Assassins.

FACES THEM AT THE TRIAL

UNUSUAL SPECTACLE IN THE COURT AT TUNIS.

Striking and Picturesque Career of the Parisian Who Married an American Girl and Lost His Life in the Soudan.



MARQUIS DE MORES.

TUNIS, North Africa, July 22.—Woman's love and determination to avenge her murdered husband are shown in the trial here on the two Arabs, El Kheir and Hanna Chiek for the assassination of the Marquis de Mores in the Soudan six years ago. The Marchioness de Mores, an American woman, the daughter of L. Von Hoffman, a New York banker, has been untiring in her efforts to bring the assassins to punishment. She has paid a large sum of money for the arrest of the two tribesmen now on trial and is in constant attendance at the hearing.

The marchioness is a beautiful woman and is accompanied by three lady companions, who came on from Paris to be with her at the trial.

The trial promises to be interesting, not only on account of the highly tragic circumstances under which the marquis met his death in the thirty-eighth year of his age at El-Ouatia, on June 8, 1896, but because the leaders of the Nationalist movement in France seem determined to give the prosecution a political aspect in the hope of adducing evidence to show that the two Chaamba Arabs, El-Kheir-ben-Abd-el-Kader and Hamma-ben-Cheik, accused of assassinating the Nationalist agitator, "were acting upon orders received by them from the French authorities in Algeria and Tunis to kill Mores."

Mores Had a Unique History.

Marquie de Mons had a unique personality and varied career. He was a native Parisian. After having sown his wild oats in Paris he married Miss von Hoffman and went to the United States, where he started a cattle farm on an immense scale in Dakota. The scheme was not a financial success, because it was started when the price of beef was rapidly falling, and the competition of the Chicago cattle dealers was too severe. After varied experiences in railway construction in Tonquin, the marquis retured to Paris, and in full sympathy with the Boulangist movement became an anti-Semite leader and a Nationalist agitator. He was a clever speaker, and, having won the confidence of the butcher boys of Villette, sought to revive the days of the Fronde.

Like the famous Duc de Beaufort, Roi des Halles, he armed his followers with staves, and attempted to take active part in the government. Foiled by the firmness of the cabinet, Mores turned his attention to Africa, where he found many windmills to tilt against, and perished in a gallant but Quixotic attempt "to form a French alliance with Islam, directed aginst England."

Mores was essentially a picturesque personality. He was tall, handsome and athletic. His broad brimmed gray felt cowboy hat was to his followers very much as was the white plume of Henry of Navarre to the men at Ivry. American felt hats became emblems of the Nationalist party, and were worn later by Jules Guerin and the defenders of the improvised fortress in the Rue de Chabrol, who, after a months' siege, were starved out and surrendered to the municipal police of Paris.

Venture Which Proved Disastrous.

One fine day in April, 1896, the Marquis de Mores, accompanied by his devoted American wife, and wearing his American felt hat, embarked at Marseilles for Algiers. The object of his mission equalled in ambition and impracticability the dreams of Montcalm, Dupliex or Lally. He started forth without a single European, accompanied only by a handful of Arabs, to found an empire on the shores of Lake Tchad, and intended, with the aid of the Mahdi of Omdurman, to conquer in behalf of France the whole Bahr-el-Ghazel country, and thus thwart Cecil Rhodes's conception of a British dominion extending from Cairo to the Cape. The mission of Commandant Marchand from the Congo to Fashoda was to be a part of this grand enterprise. Mores was to start first for the Sahara, and he expressed his conviction that a barrage constructed on the upper Nile, near Fashoda, would make the Behr-el-Ghazel region a fertile Egypt, and would reduce Egypt to a desert.

Such was the chimerical idea for which the Marquis de Mores sacrificed his life. On May 6, 1896, the adventurous Persian, with his Arab followers, embarked at Tunis for Babes. On May 9, in the oasis of Gabes, forty camels and their drivers were hired, and the expedition marched to Kebili, the last French outpost. At Kebili, a certain Ahmed-ben-Hamadi, Caid of Nef-

THE SLATE FIXED AT ST. JOSEPH

HARMONY ON THE PLATFORM

KANSAS CITY DECLARATIONS WILL BE INDORSED.

Shields to Be Temporary Chairman—The Insurgents Said to Be in the Minority—Walsh Beaten.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., July 22.—The situation at noon, the hour at which the Democratic state convention met, seemed to be:

J. H. Shields, Marion County, temporary chairman.

W. A. Rothwell of Moberly, chairman state committee.

For railroad commissioners—John A. Knott and W. C. Bronaugh.

For superintendent of education—W. T. Carrington.

The Kansas City platform will be indorsed, without specifying any particular plank.

The "insurgents" seem to be greatly in the minority.

The state committee this morning announced the temporary officers for the convention, and the selections met with no particular comment. Dr. D. H. Shields of Hannibal was named as temporary chairman, James L. Phelps of Jackson County temporary secretary and W. J. Pollard and R. J. McClanahan temporary reading clerks. The announcement of the action of the committee was not made until 11 o'clock.

A quick turn was taken on the Walsh rooters this morning, to shut them out of the convention. White tickets had been issued yesterday and several hundred Walsh-Conkling rooters were supplied. This morning it was announced that the white tickets would not be recognized and blue tickets were issued. They have been withheld from the Walsh-Conkling rooters, to prevent them from gaining admittance to the convention hall.

"I WISH WOMEN COULD VOTE."

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., July 22.—Long before the doors of the convention hall were opened today hundreds of women were there asking for admittance. Many of them came to the city for the purpose of attending the convention, while others are residents of the city, interested in the work of the Democrats because their fathers, brothers, husbands or other relatives are taking part in the proceedings. Seats were reserved for them in the upper part of the theater.

A party of young ladies came with the delegation from Hannibal, among them being Miss Elizabeth Knott, daughter of John A. Knott, candidate for railroad and warehouse commissioner; Miss Ora Barrett of Doniphan and Miss Minnie King. They are chaperoned by Mrs. John A. Knott and Mrs. Frank H. Sosey. Mrs. Joseph P. Rice and daughter, Miss Gertrude Rice, are also present.

"I wish women could vote in this state," said Miss Elizabeth Knott, who has become intensely interested in politics. "It would be exciting to take part in the campaigns and all women like excitement."

Mrs. Harry B. Hawes is here with her husband. She said she enjoys politics on account of the uncertainty she finds in the campaigns. She takes even more interest in political contests than her husband, she said.

WALSH SCORES THE MACHINE.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., July 22.—The "insurgents'" meeting at the North Opera House last night indicated that they are in a minority, but enthusiastic and determined.

Frank P. Walsh of Kansas City was the chief speaker.

He read the resolutions which he had prepared to introduce in the state convention today, which prohibit the state committee from receiving any contribution from any corporation for campaign purposes and restrict all candidates within the boundaries of the corrupt practices act, as well as tying them and managers up in innumerable ways. He read from the statutes of 1899 prohibiting corporations from using their influence or money for the election of a candidate for any office. He declared the lobby could not be destroyed until the machine had been destroyed. The machine consisted of Dockery, Cook and Seibert. He recited how the right of local self-government had been taken from the city; how Seibert had attempted to influence Representative Ransdell to vote against the reduction of stockyards charges because the company had contributed so liberally to the campaign fund and how he was to be elevated to the office of excise commissioner of St. Louis. Ransdell knew of Seibert as a great statesman, a man who had inaugurated a new system of rotation in office never equaled by Li Hung Chang. The ring trio had said they were going to scalp Walsh, Glenn and Conkling, three men who had never drawn a dollar from the party. If Cook could get his friends by the power of the state machine he would give him his scalp willingly.

Mr. Walsh then detailed much about the Cardwell case, and said that Cook could not hide behind Seibert as he had attempted to do. Ho (Walsh) had been accused of being a party wrecker, and of revealing party secrets. He defied any one of the ring to state on the floor of the convention tomorrow any specific party secret which he had revealed.

Walsh paid his respects to Cook in unqualified language, declaring that he was hypocritical in demanding in his recent published interviews that the lobby should go. He wanted to divide up the contributions made to the Democrats by the corporations into conditional and unconditional contributions. The unconditional contributions were of a peculiar sort. The telephoe company had made an unconditional contribution and yet they were protected from a bill which proposed reduced rates. The stock yards people had made an unconditional contribution and yet they were protected from legislation which proposed to force them to bear a just proportion of the state taxation. This was the worst sort of hypocrisy. Corporations were sand-bagged into making contributions toward a campaign directed against corporations. State officers claiming to be interested in the success and welfare of the party were not content with the returns of their salaries, but had turned lobbyists to swell their incomes. Walsh closed with a eulogy of the party and its principles.

ST. LOUISANS ON TWO TRAINS.

Jefferson Club Members Invade the Convention City.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., July 22.—The first big delegation to arrive today came in on the Burlington special at 7 o'clock from St. Louis. This train consisted of nine cars, including one baggage, and the balance chair cars.

The next special was on the Missouri Pacific, which arrived at 7:40 o'clock this morning. This was a train of eight cars

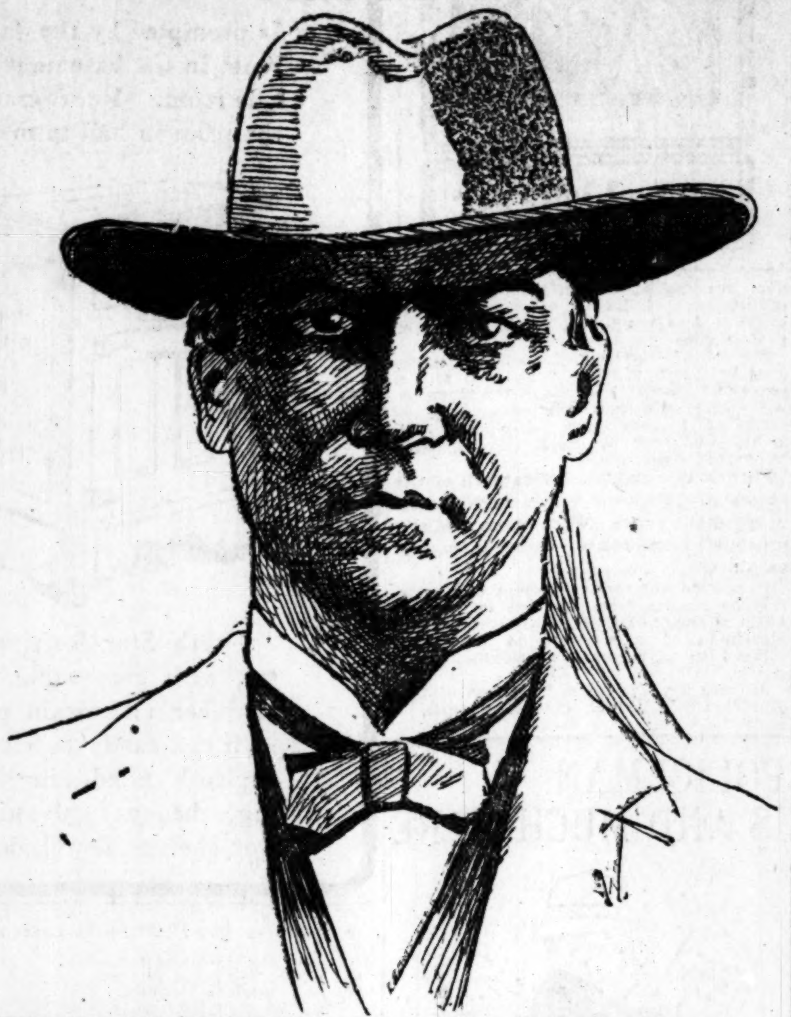
MINNEAPOLIS CHIEF OF POLICE HAS SOUGHT REFUGE IN ST. LOUIS



FRED W. AMES, SUPERINTENDENT OF POLICE, MINNEAPOLIS.

Fred W. Ames, Under Indictment in Boodling Cases, Said to Be Here and Determined Not to Return Home Unless Forced to Go.

Fred W. Ames, superintendent of police at Minneapolis, Minn., under indictment in connection with the boodling investigations in that city, is said to be in St. Louis with intentions to remain here.

It is understood from Minneapolis dispatches that the wife and children of Ames will join him here and that he will never return to the Minnesota city unless compelled to do so.

A letter received by Mrs. Ames from her husband, dated St. Louis, is said to have contained this information.

A small son of Ames told several persons that his father had written home from St. Louis. In the letter he stated that the Minneapolis newspapers had treated him unfairly and that he could not possibly get a fair trial in that city or county.

A dispatch from Minneapolis says that all the cases growing out of the police scandals have been continued to the September term of court, which is pleasing news to the defendants.

The mayor of Minneapolis, who is a brother of police Superintendent Ames, is also absent from the city, and at last reports the duties of the office were being performed by the mayor's secretary, a former police court reporter, who also was acting, practically, as superintendent of police.

Mr. Ames is not registered at any of the principal hotels.

WATER IS STEADILY RECEDING

Flood at Hannibal, However, Is Rising, With Great Damage to Mississippi Bottoms.

The water in the Mississippi river is falling steadily at St. Louis. It is four inches lower than it was Sunday morning.

More water may come out of the Mississippi in a day or two, as the flood at Hannibal is two feet above the danger line, the rise at that point being about seven inches in the past 24 hours. It is estimated at Hannibal that the crops loss in the Mississippi bottoms between Hannibal and a point opposite Keokuk will be about $6,000,000.

The fall in the river is bringing back the shanty boat dwellers to their old sites, and they are replacing the boats on their stilts preparatory to spending the summer. Shanty boat dwellers are students of the rivers' moods, and know pretty well its probable action.

The shore in the vicinity of the shanty boats is piled high with drift wood caught in the stream, which insures these amphibious dwellers plenty of fuel for next winter.

THUNDERSHOWERS TONIGHT

Dr. Hyatt Sees Rainwater in the Air and Says the Temperature Will Remain Stationary.

It will rain tonight, I ween,
'Cause it rained in Palestine,
Texas, and at San Antone
Never such a rain was known;
Even up at Keokuk
There were ponds for every duck;
And at St. Josephus rain
Gave the Democrats a pain,
For they were not looking out
For their highballs from a spout.

Dr. Hyatt says there will be trundershowers Tuesday night and Wednesday.

The river, he says, will rise, but the temperature will remain stationary.

Tuesday morning opened business at 7 o'clock with a temperature of 72, which was 6 degrees higher than Monday's opening, and vindicated the weather man, who predicted a rise.

Rain in Texas Monday night was in the nature of a flood. Palestine and San Antonio received drenchings, the downpour being measured by inches.

There was rain at Kansas City, Springfield and St. Joseph, Mo., and at Keokuk, Io.

POWER BRAKES ARE PRACTICAL

Committee of St. Louis Officials Confident Trolley Accidents Can Be Lessened.

Joseph P. Whyte, harbor commissioner, and Hiram Phillips, president of the board of public improvements, who visited various cities to study automatic power brakes, returned to St. Louis Tuesday morning.

Street Commissioner Hermann, who accompanied them, is at present in Chicago.

Mr. Phillips says that he is confident they have found brakes which will be effective and prove a great improvement over those now in use. He will submit designs at the next meeting of the board of public improvements.

The transit company has asserted all along that it has been impossible to get a better power brake than the one now being used here, but Mr. Phillips claims it will be very easy to dispute this claim.

GAVE HER LIFE FOR PET DOG

Mrs. Ellen Wright Saved It From Train, but Was Crushed to Death.

LA SALLE, Ill., July 22.—Mrs. Ellen Wright of this city lost her life in an attempt to protect her pet dog.

She, with her sister, Mrs. John Madison, was walking along the Illinois Central Railroad tracks. A passenger train was almost upon the dog, when Mrs. Wright leaped to its rescue.

She tossed the animal to safety, but was unable to avoid the train, which crushed her to death.

SANTOS-DUMONT HAS ARRIVED

Daring Brazilian Aeronaut Will Give Exhibitions With His Airship at Brighton Beach.

NEW YORK, July 22.—George Von L. Meyer, United States ambassador to Italy, and Alberto Santos-Dumont, the Brazilian aeronaut, were among the passengers on the steamship Kronprinz Wilhelm, which arrived today from Bremen.

M. Santos will give exhibitions of his airship at Brighton Beach.

Santos-Dumont said he was very glad to hear there would be several competitors for the prizes offered at the St. Louis Exposition, as it would stimulate interest in the building of airships.

ESTATE OF JAMES STEWART.

The Pioneer Builder Owned 14 Houses in the West End.

The inventory of the estate of the late James Stewart, filed in the probate court, shows that Mr. Stewart's realty holdings include, besides his home at 4010 West Belle place, houses numbered 3916, 3918, 3922, 3926, 3932, 3950, 3952, 3954, 3956 and 3958 West Belle place, 5346 Cabanne avenue and 4122 Cook avenue.

The inventory also shows $784.82 cash in bank, $364.33 due on open accounts and $967.50 in furniture.

VICE FLOURISHES AT UNION STATION

Conditions Due to Police Indifference, Fr. Coffey Says.

CRUSADE HAS BEEN STARTED

LAW ENFORCEMENT LEAGUE BACK OF MOVEMENT.

Fr. Coffey Calls Police Department a "Political Machine" and Scores Excise Commissioner Seibert.

Father James T. Coffey, president of the Law Enforcement League, which has succeeded the Anti-Wine Room Crusade, and Supt. E. E. Barclay of the Missouri Anti-Saloon League intends to conduct a vigorous warfare against certain demoralizing conditions which, they assert, have grown up around Union Station and are fostered, they declare, by the indifference of the police.

In order to accomplish their purpose they have begun the systematic collection of evidence, which, they say, will sustain the charges they propose to make.

Father Coffey and Mr. Barclay spent an hour at the station Tuesday morning. For several weeks they have dropped in at various times during the day. On each occasion, they say, they gathered enough to know that the police are winking at vice; that strangers coming to the city are entirely unprotected, and that the corruption of which they speak has hurt not only St. John's parish, but every respectable neighborhood of St. Louis as well.

"We have not been saying much lately," said Father Coffey, but we are working out a plan, which, if effective, will, I believe, put an end to some of the crimes which the police tolerate.

"Are you getting assistance from the police board?" Father Coffey was askd.

"The police board! th police board!" he repeated. "What sort of a body is that? It seems to me I have heard the word police before, but not as a department, seeking to enforce law and order."

"The police department of this great city is a political machine, living on the assessments of its members for campaign purposes. But that is not its greatest danger.

"Time and again we have submitted evidence to the police showing that disorderly saloons are being conducted. Now, to show how much our efficient department exerts itself, it is only necessary to say that the authorities will take the bare facts of the specific case laid before them as a guide and will make no attempt whatsoever to investigate general conditions.

"We cannot hope for much from the St. Louis police department as it is now constituted. There must be a change.

"Now, by this I do not wish to condemn the rank and file of the department. The ordinary officer is what his superior makes him. He tries to do his duty, and the moment one does display fearlessness enough to act according to the dictates of his conscience he is sent to some obscure beat or outlying district, where he is above 'harm.'"

"How about the winerooms?" Father Coffey was asked. "Have they been abolished?"

"In the downtown districts to a large extent they have, but in the West End there are many winerooms flourishing."

"An order was made some time ago to close the saloons at 1 a. m. This order is being persistently violated. In fact the average saloon man will admit that it practically is or will be a dead letter.

"But the Law Enforcement League is resolved to carry its fight to the limit. There must be law, there must be order, there must be moral decency. A battle for the right was never yet fought and lost."

The Union Station is now and has been for sometime the center of an immense passenger traffic, numbering sometimes as such as 25,000 persons a day.

Two policemen and two detectives are on watch their during the morning and evening. They declare they arrest every suspicuous charactr and know nothing of the conditions to which Father Coffey refers.

ST. LOUIS POLICE SPRINTERS

Relay Team of Blue Coats Beat Team of Firemen at Priester's Park Sunday.

Chief Kiely says he has in the department some of the fastest sprinters to be found on the turf. The result of the 1200-yard relay race at Priester's Park Sunday, he avers, proves the truth of this statement.

The police team beat the fire department team hands down, or rather feet, and according to the report of Capt. T. Rosser Roemer, the drillmaster, there was no danger from the firemen at any stage of the race.

The victorious police team was made up of Patrolmen Gleason, Fourth district; Greeley, Central district; Nally, Eighth district, and Manning, Eighth district.

The firemen were George Rodgers, Thomas Minahan, Fred Beeling and John Church.

Both teams were picked men from their departments. The race was run in a circle, divided into four segments of 300 yards each. One policeman and one fireman were stationed at each point. The runner reaching the first station tagged his relay man, who hot-footed for the next, and so on to the end.

KRATZ BOND CASE.

Motion for New Trial in Scire Facias Proceedings.

Theodore Rassicur, attorney for Gottlieb Eyermann, who was surety on the $20,000 bond for Charles Kratz, the fugitive boodler, filed a motion in Judge Ryan's court Tuesday asking for a new trial in the scire facias proceedings in which a judgment had been found against Eyermann for the amount of the bond.

The motion asks the court to set aside its judgment. Six reasons, all citing error on the part of the court, are cited.

The motion was filed and Judge Ryan designated Friday as the day on which arguments will be heard.

HANGMAN PUT COCKE TO DEATH

His Friends Did Not Save Him the Ignominy.

A DESPERATE MISSISSIPPIAN

THE UNPROVOKED MURDER OF G. M. WRAY.

Four Men Shot the Inoffensive Man to Death and Then Stole a Train on Which They Rode to the Next Town.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

GRENVILLE, Miss., July 22.—Ashley Cocke and Thomas Louderdale were hanged here in the jail yard today for the unprovoked murder of G. M. Wray.

Cocke and Lauderdale were tried together and sentenced to be hanged. An effort, by influential relatives and friends, to obtain a commutation of sentence for Cocke failed.

It was reported that some of Cocke's friends would attempt to shoot him on the gallows, thus saving him from the hangman. No attempt of this was made.

The Murder of Engineer Wray.

The murder of Engineer Wray was wanton. Wray was a dead-head passenger on the New Orleans fast train on the Yazoo & Mississippi Valley Railroad, bound from his home in Vicksburg for Clarksdale to take out an engine over the Tutwiler branch of the road.

Between 3 and 4 o'clock on the morning of Dec. 30 Ashley Cocke, Tom Lauderdale, Will Blackburn and A. M. Phipps boarded the train at Leland and entered the smoking car. They were all under the influence of liquor. They ordered the engineer to go back to his train. This he did, and Blackburn carried Winchester rifles; Cocke had a revolver; Phipps was unarmed.

They had been indulging in a drunken orgy at Leland the night before, and had chased the negroes away from the railway station and ordered them to stay away. A negro who did not know of this walked up on the platform and was shot by Cocke for disobeying his mandate.

When the train pulled into the station Cocke and his friends entered the smoking car, which, as is usual in the South, was divided into two compartments, one for whites and one for blacks. Cocke pushed his way through the swinging door of the partition and insolently ordered every one out of the compartment. Observing his condition, the passengers complied, except G. M. Wray, who was asleep with his head resting on the arm of the seat nearest the aisle. In passing through the car one of the party struck the sleeper's head with some force and awoke him. Wray looked resentful, and Cocke began to abuse him. Encouraged by his leader, Phipps, a small and usually an inoffensive man, sat on Wray's prostrate body and Wray threw him off.

Cocke then began to use foul language, and told Wray that the car was not large enough to hold both Wray and Cocke's party. Wray realized that he was in dangerous company, and arose, saying that he did not wish to get into trouble and would go into another car. He walked to the door in the partition and swung it open to go out.

Shot Down Like a Dog.

At that instant a fusillade of rifle and pistol shots rang out and Wray pitched headforemost through the doorway, dead. It is said that Cocke walked over to Wray, turned the body over with his foot and remarked: "This fellow bleeds worse than any man I ever shot."

The conductor of the train, George McLaughlin, hurried to the car, and when he saw that murder had been committed pulled the bell rope to stop the train. Cocke and his friends ordered him to proceed. McLaughlin, who is a man of courage, refused to do as he was bid, and ordered the engineer to back the train to Leland.

Cocke was in a most jovial mood and seemed to regard the whole proceeding as a huge joke.

At Leland the men left the train and walked up the platform to the engine.

"Here, fellow," said Cocke to the engineer, Mike Delaney, "uncouple the engine and take us to Shelby."

"Can't do it without orders," answered Delaney.

"Well, here's your orders," responded Cocke, and the muzzles of two Winchester rifles were shoved in his face.

Delaney then ordered his fireman to climb out of the engine and separate it from the train. Cocke, Lauderdale and Blackburn climbed aboard and with the muzzle of Cocke's pistol against the back of his neck Delaney started his engine up the road. Phipps, who was greatly under the influence of liquor, became separated from his companions and was left behind. He went into the station, laid down on a bench and went to sleep. He was awakened by the snapping of handcuffs on his wrists.

The engine proceeded up the road and was stopped at Shelby by Cocke's order and the passengers left it, directing the engineer to bring the train. They took a supply of liquor and were armed. Lauderdale and the train was again started for Memphis five hours late. The murderers boldly entered the hotel at Shelby and went upstairs and to bed, to sleep as if nothing unusual had happened.

Before they awoke they were arrested by Sheriff W. E. Hunt of Washington County.

Cocke and Some of His Desperate Deeds.

Ashley Cocke has long been regarded as a desperate man.

In his time he has shot more than 20 men, not all of whom died, however.

It was said of him that he could "get the drop" on his enemy, the opportunities being equal, before the other completes the process of thinking his plan of attack. It was due to this fact that Sheriff Bray of Tate County, Mississippi, met his death several years ago.

Cocke was being tried for killing a man. He began an altercation with a deputy sheriff named Gilmore. Sheriff Bray intervened as a peacemaker. Cocke resented his interference and both began to shoot. Bray was killed. Cocke was tried for murder in the first degree, but was acquitted after a hard fought legal battle.

He comes of one of the best and most influential families in northern Mississippi. His home is at Senatobia, where his brother and mother live. His brother, Wrennie Cocke, is a rich planter and merchant and has spent a fortune keeping the noose from around Ashley Cocke's neck.

Cocke came fairly by his desperate courage. His father, Jack Cocke, was killed in a fight terrible for the desperation with which it was fought. His opponent was killed also, shot to death by Cocke, after he himself was practically dead, cut almost to pieces by the other man's knife. After he was down and almost gone Cocke continued to shoot, until the other man dropped beside him and died.

At the death of his father Ashley Cocke inherited about $10,000, but the bulk of this was soon spent in defending himself in court. When indicted and brought to trial for his many shooting affairs he sent away for the best criminal lawyer he could retain. Then he [illegible] money freely for acquittal.

VENIRE COMPLETE IN FAULKNER TRIAL

Judge Douglas Overruled Motion to Quash it.

REQUEST MADE BY DEFENSE

MYSTERIOUS WOMAN AROUSED INTEREST IN COURTROOM.

She Was Only Member of Her Sex There and Followed All Proceedings Intently—Unknown to All Connected With Case.

But little progress was made Tuesday in the trial of Harry A. Faulkner, the member of the House of Delegates from the Twenty-third ward, who was placed on trial Monday in Judge Douglas' division of the Criminal Court on the charge of perjury.

The morning session dragged wearily, and it took the entire morning to examine the second panel of 12 men, from whom, with the 12 selected Monday, will be finally selected the jury that will determine the guilt or innocence of the defendant.

The courtroom was filled with citizens who had been summoned to serve as possible jurors in the special jury, and with a large number of witnesses for both the state and defense.

They were wearied with the routine work of the day, and lolled in their chairs and yawned while awaiting a summons for active duty or a release by the court.

BUT ONE WOMAN PRESENT.

In all the big crowd that filled the large courtroom there was but one woman. She occupied a seat near the rear on the north side. She was unattended by male escort and listened intently at every dull question propounded by the counsel. She spoke to no one and appeared unconscious or indifferent to the attention that was attracted to her.

She is a woman about 30 years old, was neatly dressed in a white shirtwaist and a black silk skirt and wore a large hat richly trimmed with black ostrich tips, black velvet and a wealth of pretty purple flowers.

She is rather below the medium in height is plump of figure, with a graceful carriage. Her face is round and full, and her large gray eyes saw everything that transpired in the courtroom, but betrayed nothing as to the identity of their owner.

Counsel for the state said they had no idea who the mysterious woman was. Mr Folk said that no woman had been asked to testify and he could not account for her presence. The deputy sheriffs said the woman had attended all sessions since the case was called, but had not so far as they had observed, spoken to anyone.

Counsel for the defense declared they had subpenaed no woman and they said they had no idea as to who the woman might be.

FAULKNER DOES NOT KNOW HER.

The defendant, Faulkner, said that he had wondered who the woman was, but said that never to his knowledge had he seen her before the commencement of the trial.

When the court convened Tuesday Judge Harvey filed a motion asking the court to declare Monday's proceeding with regard to the selection of the jury void, and to select the jury from the last venire of 50 served by the sheriff.

This motion was denied. Then began the tedious task of questioning the men in the jury box.

Only once was there any particular interest aroused. This was during the examination of John C. Shaw of 3941 Maffitt avenue. Mr. Shaw said that on Monday night he and his neighbors had discussed the "boodle" cases. It was the opinion of Mr. Shaw's neighbors that all of the "boodlers" were guilty, and he shared their belief.

Shortly afternoon the panel of 24, from which the 12 is to be selected, was completed. Immediately Judge Harvey filed a motion to quash the entire panel of 24, on practically the same grounds that the motions of Monday were based. Judge Douglas promptly overruled the motion, and court adjourned to meet at 2 o'clock.

FEUDISTS PREPARE FOR WAR

Shooting of Town Marshal in Kentucky From Ambush May Renew an Old Trouble.

LEXINGTON, Ky., July 22.—James Cockrell of Breathitt County, who was brought here from Jackson last night, mortally wounded, died today.

He was shot from the courthouse window at Jackson yesterday by an unidentified assailant.

Friends, who accompanied the wounded man here, say they fear his death will be the signal for a prolonged and disastrous warfare.

Cockrell was preparing to leave Jackson to get out of the Hargis-Cardwill feud when the fatal shots were fired.

He was the town marshal of Jackson. His brother is charged with killing a Hargis henchman.

SYMPATHY FOR MRS. MACKAY.

Letters and Telegrams Received From Many Distinguished Persons.

LONDON, July 22.—The Cunard line steamer Saxonia, sailing from Liverpool for Boston today, has a wireless telegram for Clarence H. Mackay, son of the late John W. Mackay, who sailed from New York Saturday, July 19, on the Campania of the same line. The Saxonia hopes to communicate with the Campania tomorrow or Thursday.

The remains of Mr. Mackay have been embalmed and placed in a metallic coffin, which is now resting in the music room of the Mackay residence, surrounded by flowers which have been sent in great profusion.

Cards, letters and telegrams from many distinguished persons in all parts of the world continue to arrive in great numbers.

Mrs. Mackay is as well as could be expected.

NO HUSBANDS, NO LEGACIES FOR THESE THREE GIRLS

Daughters of Leopold Ritter Will Receive $1000 Each if They Marry—If They Remain Spinsters They Remain Penniless.

If Miss Emma Ritter, Miss Catharina Ritter or Miss Mary Ritter of Bissel's, St. Louis County, decides to marry, the officiating minister will be able to dispense with one of the conventional questions asked bridal couples at the altar.

There will be no necessity for him to ask any of the three young women whether she takes her husband "for richer or for poorer."

For, by the terms of their father's will they become $1000 richer when they enter into the bonds of matrimony.

The will was filed at Clayton Monday afternoon and makes the $1000 matrimonial provision in no uncertain terms.

Section 3 of the will reads:

"It is my wish and will that my beloved wife, Magdalena Ritter, shall at the marriage of my three beloved daughters, Emma, Catharina and Mary [illegible] give to those three each $1000."

Probate Judge Wurde[illegible] Probate Clerk Wolff say that [illegible] first instance where such a provision was ever spread on the records of their tribunal.

Leopold Ritter, who placed a premium on matrimony for his three daughters, was one of the best-known farmers and gardeners in the Spanish Lake district.

Homestead Left to the Widow.

He formerly had a farm just north of Baden, but for several years past has lived a few miles south of Spanish Lake, and close to the links of the Field Club. Bissel's is the nearest station.

The homestead is located on a 20-acre tract which is in a fine state of cultivation. The homestead was left to the widow, Mrs. Magdalena Ritter.

Leopold Ritter had four daughters. The eldest, Bertha, married a man named Wehmann and died after giving birth to four children. In his will Leopold Ritter bequeathed $100 to each of these four grandchildren.

The matrimonial provision in the will has already occasioned much gossip among the young men of Clayton. They are anxiously inquiring of all visitors to the county seat from the Spanish Lake district about the Misses Ritter.

They did not come to Clayton when the will was filed. Their mother and brother attended to the filing of the will with the assistance of 'Squire R. C. Schnecko of Spanish Lake, before whom it was attested.

One inference that the young men of Clayton drew from the visit of Mrs. Ritter Monday was that a knowledge of the German language will be helpful to such sighing swains as may endeavor to aid the young women of the family in adding $1000 to their bank account.

WITH $1,000 DOWRY.

On savings deposit at 3 per cent it will earn $30 annually.

Half the sum, or less, will furnish neatly a five-room flat or a cottage.

By paying down about $300 a house can be bought and rent saved.

From $350 to $500 will purchase an excellent piano.

For $1000, or less, a city residence lot can be bought.

Half the sum will meet the expenses of a bridal trip to Europe.

The $1000, invested judiciously in town lots, will grow rapidly.

Put out at 6 per cent interest it will double itself in 12 years.

Thus invested it will make a dowry of about $4000 for the eldest daughter.

Many Inquiries About the Daughters.

This inference is drawn from the fact that Mrs. Ritter was unable to read the English will and it was necessary for the versatile probate clerk, Mr. Wolff, to translate it into the idiom of the fatherland.

Richard Garrett of Florissant was the only visitor in Clayton Tuesday from the northern part of the county and he was besieged with inquiries about the Misses Ritter.

He expressed deep regret, however, at being unable to favor the inquirers with any information as to the charms and distinguishing graces of the young ladies.

"I knew the old gentleman," Garrett told the interested Clayton youths, "but I have never seen the young ladies."

"Why don't you go out there and see for yourself?" interrupted Probate Judge Wurdemann, in whose office the discussion was progressing. Then, turning to a young man from St. Louis, the judge continued:

"I'll bet they are just fine, healthy country girls, and that they can lift more hay on the end of a pitchfork than you can."

The St. Louisan said if he had any bets to make on the proposition he would prefer to make them with the young ladies instead of the probate judge.

Deputy Recorder Peter Wetzel added a comment when he learned the nature of the discussion.

"I'm ready to aid the young ladies in the $1000 proposition," he said. "I'm ready to issue the licenses any time they need them."

The will leaves a life estate in all the real and personal property to the widow. At her death the homestead reverts to the testator's son, Henry. One dollar is left to each of the other sons, Leopold, Andreas, Charles, Ernst and Joseph Ritter.

zaona, provided Mores with a guide named Brahim-el-Hacheya, who deserted the expedition after having replaced the Gabesian camel drivers with men from the tribes of Touaregs and Chaamba. On May 21, Mores was photoghaphed wearing his cowboy hat and resting on his Winchester repeating rifle, and with his hunting knife and revolver in his brown leather belt.

At Djenelen, on May 30, Mores wrote:

> We narrowly missed falling into an ambush prepared for us by our enemies behind my back. Some of my camel drivers have evidently been bribed. They almost mutinied. I had to show my teeth. His last letter, dated Imchignig, June 7, states: "I hope to leave here tomorrow with the Touaregs. The Chaamba tried to revolt. I should not be surprised to find that they have been sent with me by someone with evil intent. * * * * There is something very treacherous in all this.

On June 15 the news reached Tunis that Mores, his two Algerian servants and his interpreter, Abd-el-Hack, had been massacred at El-Ouatia on June 8. Three weeks afterward their bodies were brought to Tunis.

The Wife on the Trail of Assassins.

The Marquise de Mores has devoted herself to the task of avenging her husband's death. Her first thought was to appeal to American cowboys, but she afterward abandoned this plan as likely to lead to international complications. Meanwhile, the Comte de Dion and Jules Guerin offered to organize expeditions, but she finally decided that it was better to trust to the skill and experience of the Arab chiefs. She then wrote a letter, which was translated into Arabic and sent by special messenger to all the notable sheiks. The letter was as follows:

> In behalf of the illustrious, distinguished and noble lady, the Marchioness of Mores, wife of the deceased object of God's pity, the Marquis of Mores, who was betrayed and murdered at El-Quatia, in the country of Ghadames, salutations, penitence and benediction of God. Let it herewith be known to all faithful ones that I place myself in the hands of God and of you, because I know you to be manly, energetic and courageous. I appeal to you to help me avenge the death of my husband by punishing his assassins. I am a woman. Vengeance cannot be wreaked by my own hand. For this reason I inform you and swear to you by the one Almighty God, that to whosoever shall capture and deliver to the authorities at El-Oued, at Ouargla, or at El-Goleah, one of my husband's assassins, I will give 1000 douros ($750), 2000 douros for two assassins, 3000 douros for three assassins. As to the principal assassins, Becbaoui and Sheikben-Abd-el-Kader, I will give 2000 douros for each of them. And now understand, make yourselves ready, and may God give you success. With salutations,
> MARQUISE DE MORES.

In June, 1898, Sidi-Mohammed-Taleb-ben-Brahim, Naid of the kadrya of Ouargla, delivered up to the Marquise de Mores three of the principal assassins tied hand and foot.

One has since died and the other two are now on trial here.

Two Officers as Witnesses.

Today Col. Bebillet was the first witness and the testimony of Gen. Laroque was read. Both officers declared that they sought to dissuade the marquis from starting on the expedition which resulted in his death. De Mores said to Gen. Laroque: "I am only risking my own life, and it is my business."

The general replied: "But the failure of your expedition, may retard our penetration into the Sahara for ten or twenty years."

Col. Rebillet testified that the Marquis de Mores promised to take the road to Bir-Es-Sol, but he did not keep his word, and proceeded in the direction of Tripoli. De Mores' death, according to the witness, was due to a false idea of the chivalrous character of the Touregs, whereas they were treacherous and bloodthirsty.

CONSCIENCE FATAL TO HIM.

Haunted Murderer Until He Ended His Life.

HELENA, Mont., July 22.—The body of W. C. Craft, who was wanted for the murder of a fellow sheep herder at Lewistown, has been found in the northern part of Fergus County.

An unsigned letter was found, stating that he had killed Walter McClure, that the crime had haunted him to such an extent that he could not sleep and that death was preferable to capture. He blew his head off with the weapon that had been used to kill his companion. Craft was well known in sheep circles, having resided in Montana twelve years.

MANY VICTIMS OF HARRY HIRSCH

MISS RETTA ORTON'S PRISONER HAS A RECORD.

HE DESERTED FROM THE ARMY

Several of His Dupes Have Been Found and Another Warrant Is Issued.

Since Miss Retta Orton so successfully unearthed Harry Hirsch with his scheme to defraud, and caused his arrest, Chief Desmond's sleuths have taken their cue, and now have located victims galore in all parts of the city.

Another warrant for grand larceny was issued Tuesday against Hirsch. John H. Wedlemeyer of 825 North Eighth street is the prosecuting witness. On June 9, it is alleged, Hirsch went to Wedemeyer and obtained a position as salesman. He was given $30 expense money, and samples valued at $18. Hirsch disappeared, and was not seen by Wedemeyer until after Miss Orton secured his arrest.

Other victims of Hirsch discovered by the police are Joseph Chappell of 1043 North Leffingwell avenue, Harry Trapple of 1550 South Seventh street, Jessie Deaton of 3218 Pine street, Mrs. Joseph Godfrey of 3113 Wyoming street and Neil Frederickson of 1302 Chestnut street.

August Pape of 1425 North Ninth street called at the Four Courts Tuesday morning and went to the holdover, where he identified Hirsch as the man who had attempted to swindle him out of $15 a week ago.

On that occasion Pape, who had advertised for a position, as had Miss Orton, was called upon by Hirsch.

Hirsch had assumed the name of "Mr. Pierre Chouteau," and presented one that gentleman's handsomely engraved cards. Pape was to get the position he sought, but he would have to pay a deposit of $15, which later would be returned. Pape wanted to know more about his good job, and, in investigating it, he learned that Hirsch's scheme was fraudulent.

Hirsch admitted having given Pape the Chouteau card, and said that he picked the card up somewhere and used it because it presented a "good front." He would not enter into details, but referred all questioners to his lawyer.

Hirsch has a record in the army. He deserted in the Philippines, and was arrested at his home at 1329 St. Ange avenue by Detectives Lawler, Keeley and Murphy. He served a year in the guardhouse at Jefferson Barracks for this.

EDWARD WILL VISIT CZAR.

After That Trip He May Call Upon the Kaiser.

COPENHAGEN, July 22.—It is learned from a reliable source that King Edward will visit the Czar in the latter part of September.

Immediately after the coronation Queen Alexandra comes to Denmark to join her sister, the dowager czarina, the King following about Sept. 1. The King and Queen will go to St. Petersburg, after a two weeks' stay in Denmark, sailing on the royal yacht under escort of a British and Russian warship.

Most likely King Edward will make his long expected visit to the Kaiser on his return journey.

"I Have a Fine Appetite and Perfect Digestion—Pe-ru-na Is Surely a Grand Medicine."

MR. A. J. WRIGHT

MR. A. J. WRIGHT, Treasurer of the Ancient Order of Forester's Court, 8419, Strathroy, Ont., writes:

"I have suffered for two years with pains across my back, and severe stomach trouble. I feared that I had kidney trouble, and felt very discouraged until I used Peruna. It took only five bottles to completely restore me to health and strength. The catarrhal trouble of my stomach has entirely disappeared. I have no more pain, but a fine appetite and perfect digestion. Peruna has my approval. It is surely a grand medicine."—A. J. Wright.

When the stomach is affected by catarrh there is a large quantity of vitiated mucus poured out into the stomach, which constitutes a very serious drain upon the vital powers.

This mucus passes away in one form or another and is generally unnoticed by the patient, who is unable to account for the great weakness and prostration which is experienced.

WEAKNESS AND PROSTRATION

These patients complain of lassitude, all-tired-out feelings, their blood becomes thin, nervous system deranged, food seems to do them no good, continuous and increasing weakness.

The unfortunate victim wonders why he should be so weak, why his food gives him no strength, why his blood should be so thin.

But the evil effects of catarrh of the stomach are not yet all told.

Not only does it set up the weakening drain already referred to, but it interferes with, sometimes nearly prevents, the digestion of food.

This alone would make the patient drain upon the system. When the food reaches the stomach it lies there undigested, because it does not find a proper quality of gastric juice.

Instead of digesting, it sours, forming gas, belchings of sour fluid, pain and a sense of fullness at the pit of the stomach, suffocating sensations, sick headache, palpitation of the heart, great despondency; in short, producing a condition popularly known as dyspepsia.

Peruna is a specific for catarrh of the stomach. It cures the catarrh by removing the cause. With clean, healthy mucous membranes catarrh cannot exist.

If you do not receive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case, and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Address Dr. Hartman, President of The Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, Ohio.

"C-A-T, CAT;" EVERY POLICEMAN MUST KNOW THIS AND MUCH MORE

Now the finest on the force
('Cept the chief himself, of course)
Are a-burning of the midnight kerosene;
For they've got to study well
How to read and write and spell—
It's to keep them out of Kiely's soup tureen.

For they would be in the soup,
Sure enough, if they should droop,
Fade and wilt in circumstances most untoward,
'Stead of being up to snuff
When Inspector Lally gruff
Calls them up before the fearsome Mental Board.

The Mental Examining Board is a new ogre which the St. Louis policeman must face shortly.

The new police manual contains provisions for this board, which will examine into the mental qualifications of officers, as to whether they know enough to keep out of the tureen.

Chief Kiely is a member ex-officio. The others are Inspector Edward J. Lally and Capts. Reynolds, Joyce and Creecy.

As soon as the new manuals are printed and distributed the Mental Board will begin its work.

"And it behooves the men," says Chief Kiely, "to study up on this manual and also on the branches of knowledge in which they are liable to examination at any time."

Under the new regulation, which was suggested by President Harry B. Hawes of the police board, probationary patrolmen must be examined as to their mentality within 90 days after appointment, and regular patrolmen can be yanked up before the Mental Board and made to give an account of their educational accomplishments.

The policemen are to be examined on these seven points:

Reading from print and manuscript.

Handwriting.

Writing from dictation.

Spelling as shown by writing from dictation.

In arithmetic—Addition, subtraction, multiplication and division.

Police rules and regulations.

Questions relating to city government, location of streets, public buildings, public amusements and parks.

Under this rigid examination the officer who cannot direct a stranger from Twelfth and Olive streets to the City Hall may be marked down a few in grade.

It is related that a few years ago an outsider accosted a policeman at the corner mentioned and said:

"Say, mister, I'm a stranger in St. Louis. How do you get to the City Hall?"

"By gum!" said the officer, scratching his locks, "I'm a stranger here myself, and I guess you'll have to ask the man on the next beat."

According to the new manual an applicant for a place on the force, to be appointed, must have lived four years in the city.

He must be between the ages of 24 and 34 years and between 5 feet 8 and 6 feet 3 in height.

The age limit is changed, formerly being 21 to 35 years. The minimum height is raised to 5 feet 8. New appointees must weigh at least 150 pounds.

"I have been on the force for ten years," says O'Malley,
"And it's never I've failed or I've quailed in my work;
And it's never I've shrunk from inspection by Lally,
And a spalpeen is he who would call me a shirk."

"I have walked on my beat till, all footsore and weary,
I have been like to drop (in the corner saloon);
That my duty I've done it is clear," says O'Leary,
"From the midnight to morn and from morning to noon."

"I have writ my reports to the cap'n," says Casey,
"And I never have shrunk from a man or a beast;
I would tackle a bulldog or take Mr. Tracy,
And I'm mental enough to be sergeant, at least."

There is no doubt that the mental standard of the force is high enough for all practical purposes, though there may be a man here and there who will trip up on a casual question or two.

The policeman whose signature is "His (X) Mark" will not be found in the department after the mental board performs its duties.

The three R's—Readin', Ritin, and Rithmetic—appear to be the entire curriculum of this new policeman's college, and the officer will not be required to know higher algebra or calculus, nor will it be necessary for him to be able to read at sight a passage in Virgil or Xenophon.

He will not even be compelled to conjugate the human anatomy as to nerves, nor to parse it as to bones, though it would appear that an officer should have this knowledge in order to know where to put his bullets.

Though the manual calls only for writing from dictation, it is not improbable that Inspector Lally may, in his discretion, vary this monotony by requiring his pupils to turn in an occasional essay or "composition," to be read by the aspiring and perspiring aspirant before the class.

Subjects already suggested for compositions are:

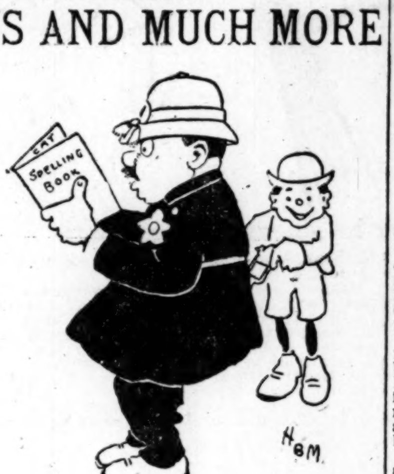
"Where Was O'Houligan When the Scrap Started?"

"Trials and Tribulations of Clarence, the Cop."

"Leaves From a Policeman's Beatbook."

"Diary of a Dinky Sergeant."

"MS. Found in a Copper's Cylinder (44 caliber)."



"Should the Collar Stand Up or Be Turned Down?"

"Nursery Rhymes by a Park Policeman."

"Daydreams on the Beat, in Five Doses."

"Working the Graft."

"Free Banans I Have Et."

"How I Captured Snake Jones, the Town Terror."

"Sites I Have Saw and Seens I Have Sited."

"Owed to Harry Hawes."

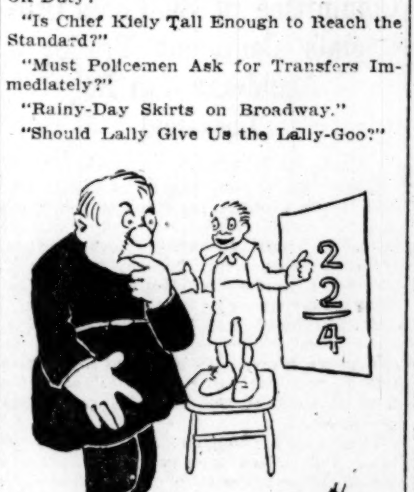
"Should a Policeman Go Loaded When Off Duty?"

"Is Chief Kiely Tall Enough to Reach the Standard?"

"Must Policemen Ask for Transfers Immediately?"

"Rainy-Day Skirts on Broadway."

"Should Lally Give Us the Lally-Goo?"



"Why I Am a Policeman."

"Crooks I Have Not Caught."

"Should a Policeman Be Naturalized?"

"On the Location of the City Hall."

"Tales of Tom McGrath in Wadleyhairy."

"Desmond's Dream in Mexico, or Maximilian Reincarnated."

"How I Could Take Mr. Tracy."

"Which Club Is Superior—the Lilly or the Jefferson?"

I'd like to be a copper
And with the coppers stand,
A helmet on my topper,
A billy in my hand.

I'd like to sport a pistol,
About a forty-four,
And exercise with this till
I glut the town with gore.

I'd like to guard a corner,
Where I could sleep and soar—
The public's watch and warner
Amid the trolley's roar.

But when I think of Lally
And Kiely's Mental Board,
I fear I cannot tally—
And I regret I've soared.

It is said that the form of examination as to location of public institutions may be something like this:

Q. Where is the City Hall?
A. Catty-cornered across from the Four Courts.
Q. Where is the Four Courts?
A. Three of them are in the police headquarters building. The other has moved to the old City Hall.
Q. Where is Forest Park?
A. Just east of the World's Fair—what remains of it.
Q. Where is Delmar Garden?
A. T'other side of the racetrack.
Q. Where am I at?
A. You was just inquiring about the racetrack—I mean the garden, Maj. Lally.
Q. Where is Mr. Hawes?
A. At St. Joe, rooting for Jeffersonian (Club) Democracy.
Q. Where is Olive street?
A. It begins at the river and ends in the West End.
Q. Where were you last night when three footpads robbed a woman on your beat and got away?
A. At my post.
Q. Lamp or gate? Where is East St. Louis?
A. Over the river and far away.
Q. Where is Carlos Kratz?
A. Ask Sherlock Holmes.

It will be seen that as to locations the policeman will be fairly well up. As to the three R's, if he has not had proper advantages in his youth he will find that his children, attending the city schools, are able to instruct him fitly, if he is willing to spend his evenings before the family blackboard doing sums in addition, subtraction and so forth.

In case the officer is a bachelor, his only recourse is to take his old blue spelling book along when he goes to walk his beat. It will surprise him to discover how easy it is to spell from Be to Baker, but he must not become too deeply engrossed in abstruse speculations in orthography and let the bad boy of the beat disarm him.

A grade of 100 per cent will be perfect, 80 good, 65 fairly good and below 65 bad, according to the mental board specifications in the manual.

But in the end it is believed that the great majority of men now on the force will pass creditable examinations, for they are as a body men of intelligence, and as policemen they compare favorably with any set in the world.

SUNDAY CLOSING SETTLED

Last Official Corporation Signatures for St. Louis Exposition Have Been Secured.

CHICAGO, July 22.—The Rev. Wilbur F. Crafts of the International Reform Bureau has addressed a letter to President Roosevelt stating that at last the official corporation signatures for the St. Louis Exposition have been secured for the Sunday closing contract.

This, the Rev. Mr. Crafts maintains, makes the contract binding, and insures the closing of the Exposition on Sunday.

The treasury department, the letter states, has hitherto refused to demand the official signatures, and for this an investigation is demanded, Mr. Crafts contending that the aim was to leave a loophole through which the Exposition officials could escape living up to the Sunday closing agreement.

GEN. FIRMIN MAKES PROGRESS.

More Forces Proclaim Him as President of Hayti.

CAPE HAYTIEN, Hayti, July 22.—Gen. Firmen is marching to the presidency of Hayti with rapid strides. He makes gains every day, and now dreams of the complete pacification of the island.

A new party has added its support to him.

Gen. Jean Jumeau, who is supporting M. Firmin, has received at Gonaives, by the steamer Valencia from New York, 200 tons of coal and war munitions for the cruiser Crest a Pierrot.

The situation here is alarming. The general opinion is that Gen. Jean Jumeau intends marching on Port-au-Prince, and that he will send the Crete a Pierrot there with troops.

PAINTER WHISTLES IMPROVES.

But Age and General Weakness Are Against Him.

THE HAGUE, July 22.—James McNeill Whistler, the American painter, who has been suffering from illness here, continues to progress favorably, but, owing to his age and general weakness, he requires great care.

PURE MILK BILL IS IN DANGER

Majority of House Members Opposed to It.

POWERFUL INTERESTS AT WORK

PLAN IS TO SMOTHER BILL IN COMMITTEE.

Meanwhile St. Louis Is at Mercy of Irresponsible Dairymen—An Inspector Who Doesn't Inspect.

The pure milk bill, passed by the City Council a week ago, will be killed in the House of Delegates if a majority of the members of that body carry out the threat which they have secretly made.

Since the upper house approved the measure powerful influences have been brought to bear on the delegates and a petition is being formulated to show that opposition to the bill in its present shape is widespread.

The House will not openly go on record against the measure, the present plan being to smother it in a "friendly" committee.

No matter to what trickery or deception irresponsible dairymen may resort, there is no law to bring them to justice.

The city fathers have had under consideration a milk ordinance for the last 18 months.

Thirteen years ago the Supreme Court declared the current ordinance invalid, but since that time and for three years previous a milk inspector has been appointed regularly by the mayor. This inspector's salary is $1500 a year.

INSPECTOR DOESN'T INSPECT.

Recently the Post-Dispatch published an interview with Dr. Hellwig, the present milk inspector, in which he admitted that he did nothing more than draw his pay and make out annual reports. He acknowledged that he had never instituted a single prosecution.

He confessed that any milk dealer might with impunity dilute or poison his milk and he could do nothing.

He declared that he was hampered by the fact that he had no deputies to make inspections.

If he should make an inspection he did not know how he could proceed to enforce the law, he said.

The health department presented an ordinance to the Council over a year ago. The councilmen played with it and then had a committee pigeon-hole it.

It was not until the Post-Dispatch called attention to the conditions existing at the City Hospital and the Poorhouse that either the health department officials or members of the Municipal Assembly took any action on this question.

PATIENTS' LIVES ENDANGERED.

Dr. Nietert declared to Health Commissioner Starkloff in a written report that the supply of milk furnished his institution was so impure that the lives of the patients were endangered. The supply was stopped and the contract revoked. For seven days the patients at the hospital had no milk.

At the Poorhouse Superintendent Remmers reported like conditions.

At the same time he showed how the city could furnish its supply of milk to all institutions.

Mayor Wells was asked by the Post-Dispatch Tuesday morning why the city paid a salary to a milk inspector. He would not discuss the matter, pleading pressure of other business.

It is generally understood at the City Hall that the House of Delegates wants to add certain amendments to the bill.

The officials of the health department, who have advocated the bill heretofore, are now dividing honors with the opposition.

Dr. Starkloff is on record as saying that the bill should be amended.

An amendment will mean weeks, if not months, of delay.

The Council passed the present bill after a public hearing, in which all sides were heard—the dairymen and the consumers.

This bill is said to be perfectly valid by lawyers to whom it was submitted. It provides that each retail dairyman shall pay a license of $5 a year and the wholesalers $50 per annum.

The revenue thus accruing—about $12,000 a year—would be sufficient the authorities say to make the milk inspection department self-sustaining.

It is proposed to place the department under the direct supervision of the city chemist.

THE SLATE FIXED AT ST. JOSEPH.

and it was filled to its utmost capacity.

In all there were 856 members of the Jefferson Club of St. Louis who came in on these two trains.

The train was met at Union Station by a large delegation of the Monroe Club entertainment committee, who gave the visitors a hearty handshaking welcome and requested them to remain at the depot until the second contingent from St. Louis arrived, 40 minutes later.

The Jefferson Club's field band headed the delegation and a few taps from the snare drums soon had the delegates lined up ready to receive their co-workers who came in on the Missouri Pacific.

Pryor's band was on hand and started the first genuine bit of enthusiasm as the delegates stepped from the train, by striking up "Dixie." To this the crowd yelled and cheered. The field band of St. Louis evened up the honors by playing "Yankee Doodle," and then the crowd cheered again.

The Missouri Pacific train arrived on schedule time. The Manhattan Quartet of Virgina fame, sang a sweet melody as the delegates were stepping from the car to the platform.

There were at least 1500 people in the crowd at the Union Depot by this time. Headed by the Monroe committee, the visitors were marched to the Jefferson Club headquarters, in the big tent at Fourth and Jule streets. The St. Louis people were in the direct command of John Boogher, chairman of the marching club.

Arriving at the tent, Judge A. M. Woodson of St. Joseph mounted a stand and extended to the St. Louis contingent a most hearty welcome. Judge Woodson had not forgotten how the St. Louis politicians turned him down at the Springfield convention two short weeks ago, but he did not allow this to interfere with his inexhaustible supply of welcome for them all. He was cheered again and again.

Prominent among the leading Democrats on the morning trains was Jerry J. Sheehan of St. Louis. He is chief sergeant-at-arms of the Jefferson Club.

R. F. Combs, one of the leading Democratic workers of the Exposition city, headed the magnificent delegation from St. Louis on the Missouri Pacific train.

Others of prominence in St. Louis politics on the Missouri Pacific were Judge F. M. Kleiber, Dr. John H. Simon, Ross B. Swift, John P. Dolan and Dr. A. C. Bernays.

Among the leaders on the Burlington special was John T. Fitzsimmons, secretary of the Jefferson Club. Judge Valliant, the supreme judge and recent nominee for re-election, was among the first to step from the train. Judge Pollard, C. H. Fauntleroy, Ed S. Butler, T. W. DeMoss, Dr. George W. Westbrook were also among those who came in this morning from St. Louis.

Senator John P. Collins and Phil Dwyer of the city committee wore Jefferson Club badges. Billy Flynn, who never missed a good thing when a convention was on, was in the St. Louis crowd. He wore a Joe Rice badge. Edward J. Noonan, candidate for Congress, made it convenient to attend the convention.

The St. Louis delegation came loaded for Joe Rice. It was a regular wedding affair so far as Rice is concerned and the supporters had no scruples about where they threw the emblems of good luck. These delegates were also rooting very heavily for the nomination of John A. Knott for railway commissioner. They also wanted Judge Rothwell of Moberly to be made chairman of the state central committee.

Col. Billy Rider, who came to the convention early, was arrested by the police last night, but was rescued by friends this morning.

A Time of Anxiety for Thousands.

PAINE'S CELERY COMPOUND

Will Banish the Summer Blues and Other Distresses That Make Life Miserable and Unhappy.

This is the season when we hear men and women complaining about their unhappy and half-dead condition. They find that physical and mental energy has deserted them, and they are sinking deeply in the pit of despondency.

The hot summer weather always produces thousands of miserable feeling mortals. They lack nerve force, strength and true vitality. They cannot rest day or night, and life becomes a burden.

The great recuperator, builder and strengthgiver for all weary, wornout and suffering people is Paine's Celery Compound, now so universally prescribed by medical men. When the great medicine is used at this season, languor, despondency, irritability, nervousness, sleeplessness, headache, dyspepsia and digestive troubles are permanently banished, and men and women go about their duties and work with a vim, will and energy that indicate health and physical strength.

Mr. J. H. Clark, Newark, Del., who was in a critical condition of health from troubles extremely common in summer time, writes thus about his marvelous rescue from death:

"When I was attacked with nervous prostration, I went to one of our local doctors. I continued to grow worse, and consulted other physicians, but with very little apparent good. No tongue can express or pen describe my feelings and suffering from this terrible disease. After spending considerable money in the vain hope of being cured, I was led to try Paine's Celery Compound, and it is this medicine which enabled me to enjoy the health I now have. After the torture I experienced night and day for years the change is wonderful."

BOOMING OLNEY FOR PRESIDENT

John P. Hopkins of Chicago Visited the East.

MET TROUBLE IN NEW YORK

HILL HAD FRIENDS WHERE THEY WERE NOT EXPECTED.

Illinoisan Thinks There Would Be No Opposition to New England Statesman Among Supporters of Mr. Bryan.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

BUFFALO, July 22.—The real errand of John P. Hopkins of Chicago, chairman of the Illinois Democratic committee, in this city, where he visited State Committeeman John J. Kennedy for a few days, came to light today. His trip was made primarily for the purpose of ascertaining whether there was a likelihood that New York state would support Richard Olney for President in 1904 in preference to David B. Hill.

While Mr. Hopkins was here he took dinner on several occasions at the Ellicott Club and the Buffalo Club with National Committeeman Norman E. Mack, Chairman John Cunneen of the Democratic general committee, John J. Kennedy, Democratic state committeeman; Wilson S. Bissell, who was also a member of the Cleveland cabinet, and other prominent Democrats. It is said, his reception was decidedly friendly.

What Mr. Hopkins wanted to know was whether the delegates from New York in 1904 could be talked for Mr. Olney. In his mind the opinion seemed to be well formed that Hill would make no effort to secure the New York state delegation for himself, and Mr. Hopkins believed that if Olney were a candidate his chief opponent here would be Hill. Mr. Hopkins came to Buffalo laboring under the impression that if National Committeeman Mack was against Hill, and that, while he might not be particularly friendly toward Olney, he would prefer Olney to Hill, and that therefore he could be depended upon to take up the fight for Olney against Hill in New York state.

It undoubtedly is true, as Mr. Hopkins stated to the Buffalo Democrats, that Mr. Bryan harbors no personal ill-will, so far as Mr. Olney is concerned. The fact was pointed out that while Bryan had bitterly assailed both the Democracy and the personality of Grover Cleveland and David B. Hill, he had never once said a word that could be construed into a personal attack upon Olney. Therefore Mr. Hopkins thought that Olney might be acceptable to all sides except to Hill, especially in view of the fact that Olney would figure as Hill's opponent. It would be anything to beat Hill, so Mr. Hopkins thought.

But Mr. Hopkins found that he had not been able to get into exact touch with New York state politics. Viewed from Chicago, it had appeared to him that National Committeeman Mack would be pleased at the opportunity to take up the cudgels against David B. Hill.

But Mr. Hopkins was surprised to find Mr. Mack making overtures for a reconciliation with Hill, and not willing to be induced to climb into the Olney band wagon. Mr. Hopkins, however, found a strong sentiment in favor of Olney among men of the old Cleveland Democracy and among Democrats who are opposed to Hill because of his alleged lukewarmness in supporting Bryan.

DEATH OF WILLIAM DOWELL.

Octogenarian Had Lived Over Seventy Years With the Boyce Family.

William Dowell, who died Monday at the residence of Capt. Joseph Boyce, 3736 West Pine boulevard, aged 82 years, had lived with the Boyce family since he was 10 years old.

Seventy-two years ago he was adopted by Patrick M. Boyce, Capt. Boyce's father. The senior Boyce brought Dowell to St. Louis with him in 1840. Dowell worked for his foster father until the latter's death, when he became cashier for Boyce Bros., the members of this firm being Capt. Boyce and his brother. Two years ago "Uncle William," as he was known, retired from active work. After a brief illness he died Monday of ailments incident to old age. His funeral will take place Wednesday morning from St. Xavier's Church.

Ellie Wilton Dead.

NEW YORK, July 22.—Miss Ellie Wilton, for many years a well-known actress, and for eight years a member of the California Theater Stock Company of San Francisco, is dead at her home in [illegible], L. I., from heart trouble. Miss Wilton was, in private life, Mrs. Thomas Doremus. Mr. Doremus was in St. Louis when she died.

JOHN W. MACKAY FEARED COURTS

Deeded Property to Prevent Litigation.

DOCUMENTS BEING RECORDED

THOSE FOR SAN FRANCISCO HOLDINGS ALREADY FILED.

Widow and Son Are Made Equal Beneficiaries and It Is Believed Other Property Will Be Similarly Transferred.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 22.—John W. Mackay left deeds to all his San Francisco real estate. These documents, which were drawn up by Garret McEnerney, were filed for record by James L. Flood Monday.

Mr. Mackay's local holdings consisted of a half interest in the Grand Opera House property, a half interest in the Nevada block and the whole of a large piece of property at the southeast corner of Market and Fourth streets. The other half of the first two properties belongs to James L. Flood.

All of Mr. Mackay's interest is deeded, share and share alike, to his wife and his son, Clarence Mackay.

The deeds to the half of the Nevada block and to the whole of the property at Fourth and Market streets were made in December, 1900.

The deed to the half of the Grand Opera House property was made last March at the time of Makay's last visit to this city.

It is estimated that the real estate transferred by the three deeds is worth about $1,250,000.

Mr. Makay owned no other piece of realty in this city, but possessed land in San Mateo, Marin and Mendocino Counties; also large tracts of timber land in Nevada.

It is probable that deeds to all his holdings will be soon filed as it is thought that the disposition made of the San Francisco property was only part of a plan to keep his estate out of the courts.

That Mr. Makay had a premonition of death seems apparent from acts other than the deeding of his property to his wife and son.

In California and Nevada, there are many families—how numerous they are will never be known, for the charty of the Bonanza King was without ostentation—that have been supported for years by Mr. Makay. In some cases they were relatives of former employes who had met accidental death. At least two of these families in San Francisco received monthly checks for $100 each.

Recently, Mr. Mackay sent word to one of those he was assisting that the monthly remittances would cease. Inclosed with the notices were checks for large sums designed to place the beneficiaries in a position to support themselves thereafter.

MACKAY'S LAST OFFICIAL ACT.

Protested Against Knox's Holding Up of Cable Plans.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, July 22.—The last cable message sent by John W. Mackay was a strong protest against the holding up of his Pacific cable undertaking by Attorney-General Knox.

Without the promise of subsidy Mr. Mackay had undertaken to construct a cable from San Francisco to Manila, covering a distance of 8000 miles, at a cost of not less than $20,000,000.

It was to be the crowning effort of his life, and, in fact, was unprecedented.

Mr. Mackay offered to furnish all the capital without any subsidy, allowing the government to fix its own rates for official business, giving official business preference in transmission, permitting the government to control the cable's operation in case of war or other public necessity and again offering to sell to the government at any time, the value to be determined by appraisers.

In the closing days of Congress desperate attempts were made in the House to pass a bill providing for government ownership and construction. The passing of such a measure would have vitiated all of Mr. Mackay's contracts and caused him to lose all the money advanced for cable work. The bill was defeated by a vote of 116 to 88.

The work being done by the Commercial Pacific Cable Co. is the most remarkable piece of cable construction ever undertaken. After the Hawaiian section of 2000 miles is finished on Nov. 1, there will remain about 6000 miles to be filled in. The completing of 6000 miles of cable in 11 months is something never before considered possible. It will be the longest direct line of cable in the world.

When Mr Mackay announced that he had contracted for the first section of his cable between San Francisco and Manila, the rate from New York to Manila was $2.35 a word. After the announcement, the rate was reduced to $1.56. The Commercial Pacific Cable Co. promises that the rate on commercial business, not only to Manila and all points in the Philippines, but to China and Japan, shall be $1.

When Mr. Mackay made his proposition to Congress, he promised to have San Francisco and Manila connected by Jan. 1, 1905. That date was then regarded as the earliest at which the work could be finished.

Accepting Mr. Mackay's word, Congress voted down the government ownership bill and left the road open to the Commercial Cable Co.

Mr. Mackay reciprocated by sailing for Europe almost on the day the government bill was defeated. He had with him Vice-President Ward of the Commercial Cable Co. Messrs. Mackay and Ward opened negotiations with the manufacturers of cable and contracts were closed which would permit the completion of a line between San Francisco and Manila by June 1, 1903, 18 months earlier than was believed possible when Congress rejected the government ownership bill.

The completion of the cable within eleven months now hinges on the possibility of obtaining from the navy department soundings made several years ago by the government steamer Nero for a route from San Francisco to Hawaii and thence via the midway islands and Guam to Luzon.

Application for the soundings was made to the secretary of the navy through W. W. Cook, the cable company's general counsel. Mr. Cook was accompanied by Senator Perkins of California.

Attention was called to the fact that completion of the Pacific cable eighteen months earlier than expected would result in an immediate reduction from $1.56 a word, which the government is now paying, to 50 cents a word, thus saving the government more than $300,000 in tolls through the earlier completing of the cable.

The permitting of the use of the soundings was referred to Admiral Bradford, who recommended complying with the company's request.

The case was then taken up by the cabinet, and, after some consideration, referred to Attorney-General Knox for an opinion. The papers are still in the department of justice, where each day's delay means heavy expenses to the government.

Mr. Mackay finding himself unable to obtain a definite reply from the government about the soundings and being unable longer to hold options on the cable manufacturers' plants, closed a contract which provides for the completing of the line between the United States and the Philippines by June 1, 1903, provided the navy department will permit the use of its soundings.

This was the last official act of Mr. Mackay's life.

ESTIMATES OF MACKAY ESTATE.

Wall Street Declares Friend's Statement of $50,000,000 Too Low.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, July 22.—While William H. Baker, vice-president and general manager of the Postal Telegraph system, hazarded $50,000,000 as an estimate of the value of the dead man's estate, Edward Platt, treasurer of the Postal company, and an old friend of Mr. Mackay, refused to even name a figure which could be said to be approximate.

Fifty millions, it was said by Wall street men, is a small figure to name as the holdings of a man who took $40,000,000 for the Bonanza mines and his one-fourth share of the profits on $700,000,000 of ore which the Comstock lode and the others in that group of Nevada mines furnished to Mackay, Flood, Fair and O'Brien.

The Commercial Cable Co. was Mr. Mackay's own project, and, before it was started, Mr. Mackay, Robert Garrett and the elder James G. Bennett were to subscribe to one-third each of the stock. Robert Garrett's financial troubles came then and the company was launched without him. At his death Mr. Mackay owned all but a small proportion of the stock. The company's capitalization is $15,000,000, and it pays a 7 per cent dividend and an extra dividend of 1 per cent.

Four or five years ago, in anticipation of some such even as has taken place, Mr. Mackay decided to bring the cable and postal companies in such close union that the sea and land lines never could be under separate control.

The cable company absorbed all the stock of the telegraph company and issued $20,000,000 4 per cent, 50-year gold bonds in payment. Mr. Mackay at that time held 80 per cent of the Postal Co.'s stock and he has parted with none of it. He owned the Postal building, 253 Broadway, worth about $1,750,000, and was the largest owner in the new cable building, 20 Broad street, adjoining the Stock Exchange, and of adjacent property bought to give an entrance on Exchange place and to insure plenty of light and air for the big office building. Jefferson M. Levy owned some lots required for the building's site, and he has an interest in the property, but Mr. Mackay's share is worth about $1,500,000.

Mr. Mackay held a large amount of stock in the Southern Pacific Railway Co. and was a director beside having a heavy investment in its bonds.

He was a director and heavy stockholder in the Canadian Pacific Railway Co. and he and Sir William Van Horn were the principal members of a syndicate which is to build the first trunk line railroad in the new Cuban republic.

Mr. Mackay's properties included many western real estate and mining holdings. He had a large estate in Texas and another in Southern California and owned the Grand Reef copper mine in Arizona, which he had only recently begun to develop. Besides all these properties, there were others who knew Mr. Mackay had millions invested and not known about by the public.

WEDDING ENDS CHOIR ROMANCE

MISS MAGUIRE AND BENOIST SANGUINET MARRIED.

THEY SANG IN ST. THERESA'S

Contralto and Tenor Learned to Love at Church Rehearsals.

MR. AND MRS. B. SANGUINET.

Miss Annabel S. Maguire and Mr. Benoist Sanguinet were quietly married by Rev. Father Lavery at the Church of the Holy Rosary at 5 o'clock Monday afternoon.

It was the final scene in a life drama that embodied the various phases of a romance, with a pulpit for a stage and the choir loft of a temple of worship the Juliet balcony. The climax was not sensational, although the few who witnessed it were visibly impressed.

The principals received congratulations, bade a farewell and went out into the world to portray the characters of husband and wife.

Miss Maguire had been singing contralto in St. Teresa's Church choir only a short time, when Mr. Sanguinet was engaged as tenor. They were introduced, met regularly at rehearsals, stood side by side at public services and frequently participated in entertainments. And they loved.

After six months of this constant companionship Mr. Sanguinet could no longer conceal his affection for the pretty singer, and one evening he threw his whole soul into the rendition of that popular ballad, "O, Answer Me a Question, Love, I Pray," and the response was eminently satisfactory.

Engagement Kept Secret.

They were engaged to be married for another six months, but the engagement was not public property. The date for the ceremony was set for Monday. Invitations were issued to only the immediate relatives of the contracting parties.

It is not denied that Mr. Sanguinet sang his way to his bride's heart and that her sweet contralto caused many a flutter in his breast before they realized the real reason for the sensation.

Mrs. Sanguinet is about 18 years old and possesses a voice of rare beauty, and her husband is well known in musical circles. He sang for two years in the choir of St. Alphonsus' Rock Church, and was at one time connected with the Castle Square opera company.

MAY MOVE TO IOWA.

Missouri River Commission's Office in St. Louis May Close Shortly.

Within a week it is probable that the office of the Missouri river commission may be removed from Leffingwell avenue and Locust street to Sioux City, Io., to lessen expenses. At present there is a Missouri river commission office in both places, the one at Sioux City being of minor importance.

The loss of the St. Louis office would mean much to local business men, as $100,000 worth of goods is sometimes purchased in one year by the commission. Last year the appropriation from the government did not reach its usual size, being just enough to keep the boats on hand from rotting.

The office at St. Louis has the records of the Missouri river for more than 40 years, and during that time special care was taken to keep the rivers in charge of the commission—the Missouri, the Gasconade and the Osage—in navigable condition and to keep them from breaking their banks.

Through the commission 45 difficult miles of the Missouri river have been kept navigable by persistent work.

It is thought that the change of offices will work considerable hardship to the farmers dwelling in the river valleys. If the rivers lose their navigability the freight rates will increase because the railroads will have no competition.

CHICAGO TENNIS TOURNEY RESUMED

Good Weather Brought Out an Enthusiastic Crowd at Kenwood.

CHICAGO, July 22.—Play was resumed today in the 14th annual western tennis championship tournament on the courts of the Kenwood Country Club. Perfect weather prevailed and the games brought out a large crowd of enthusiastic spectators.

Today it is expected the third round in singles and first and second rounds in the doubles will be completed.

The tourney will cover the entire week, the end coming Saturday when R. D. Little of Princeton, present western champion in singles, and Alexander and Little, champions in doubles, will defend their titles.

EARTHQUAKE IN ST. VINCENT.

Inhabitants Remained Out of Doors Most of Night.

KINGSTOWN, Island of St. Vincent, July 21.—There was another severe earthquake here at 1:10 o'clock this morning.

It was of long duration and was accompanied by a repetition of the phenomena on Thursday last.

The shock caused intense excitement among the inhabitants, who fled in their nightclothes into the streets and remained out of doors until daybreak.

Partially demolished buildings are being pulled down today for public safety.

There was a thunderstorm last night. Tonight the weather is very squally and the sea is receding. Some persons anticipated a tidal wave.

Death of Sister Gonzaga.

Sister Mary Gonzaga of the Order of St. Mary, died in the convent last week and was buried in Calvary on Saturday morning. She was only [illegible] years old and had entered the cloister when but [illegible] years of age. In lay life she was Frances [illegible], and was reared in the religious atmosphere of Florissant, entering the convent directly after taking her first communion.

SOCIETY BALKS AT TERRY M'GOVERN

New London's Swell Set Asks Ambitious Pugilist to Move On.

NEW LONDON, Conn., July 22.—Society here declines to stand for the propinquity of Terry McGovern and has asked Mayor Dart to see that the former champion moves on, beyond the precincts of the Pequot colony.

Terry's manager had selected the Montauk Hotel, located in the heart of the district inhabited by wealthy summer residents, as his abode during the training period of the next few weeks. The proprietor of the hostelry had made all arrangements for receiving his guest, even to fitting up training quarters in the stable.

When McGovern and his party, including his manager, brother and trainers, arrived, the first person he encountered was Tim Donahue, who politely told him that he would not be permitted to stop at the Montauk Hotel, owing to the objection of some of the residents of the neighborhood.

Terry was fearful that the move might mean the stopping of the match, but was assured that Mayor Dart had no intention of interfering beyond insisting upon the removal of McGovern's quarters.

Sam Harris is on the lookout for new quarters, and it is anticipated that the former champion will be at work in a day or two, in some part of the city where the smart set have no jurisdiction.

Tim Hurst has been chosen to referee the fight between McGovern and Young Corbett, which will be decided here Aug. 29.

RUSSELL SAGE WAS INJURED

Aged Millionaire Was Thrown to Pavement by Starting Car, but Hurts Were Not Serious.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, July 22.—Russell Sage was attempting to board a car with his secretary yesterday afternoon when it started, throwing him violently to the pavement.

His head barely missed the wheels. He was dragged 20 feet.

After the accident he attended a stockholders' meeting. He was severely bruised, but not seriously hurt. He said he did not know whether he would sue the company or not, but he thought not, as he was not badly hurt.

BLOCKED THREE CAR LINES.

Negro Fought Trouble Wagon Men Away From a Wreck.

Frank Fluis, a negro, 2127 Franklin avenue, caused a blockade of cars on three streets Tuesday morning and delayed traffic more than half an hour. Fluis is now a Four Courts prisoner, and will have to go before Judge Clark.

The trouble arose at 7:15 o'clock, when a Park avenue car crashed into a sprinkling wagon on the Eighteenth street bridge incline. The wagon was wrecked and one of the mules drawing it was so badly injured that it had to be killed.

Fluis was attracted to the wreck. When he arrived he armed himself with a handful of stones and a big screw driver and fought all the street car men who attempted to clear the wreck. Even when the trouble wagon arrived Fluis would not permit them to work. The police were summoned, and after a scrimmage the negro was taken.

Eighteenth street from Chouteau avenue to Washington avenue and Clark avenue from Twelfth street to Union Station were filled with cars.

CONDEMNATION COMMISSION.

Court Appoints Three to Fix Compensation in Rock Island Terminal.

Judge Hough of the Circuit Court has named Edward T. Farish, Charles F. Vogel and Ernst Hildebrandt as commissioners to fix the compensation for the property to be acquired through condemnation proceedings by the St. Louis, Rock Island & Terminal Railway for terminal purposes in North St. Louis.

The properties involved are city blocks Nos. 3493 and 3498; the site of the Leschen & Sons new rope factory, now in course of construction; lots 10 and 11, in city block No. 3457, held by Charles B. Casper, and lots 49 and 50, in the same block, owned by Julia O'Keefe. The property of A. Leschen & Sons, for which the Mercantile Trust Co., the railroad's representative, offered $80,000, is held by the owners at $160,000.

The property of the Kennett estate, comprising 13 acres, will not be included in the condemnation proceedings, the railroad company being able to dispense with this portion of the contemplated purchase.

FLEMING ESTATE SETTLEMENT.

Attorneys Daniel Dillon, T. J. Rowe and J. S. Laurie Receive a Fee of $20,000.

Public Administrator T. F. Ackerman of St. Louis County at Clayton Monday made a partial settlement of the estate of the late Dr. Alfred W. Fleming of Kirkwood. He paid out $75,000, one-half going to Mathew W. Quan of Kirkwood, father of the late Mrs. Fleming, and one-half to Francis McMullin of Kirkwood, curator for Alfred Walton Fleming, Jr. Out of these amounts Mr. Ackerman ordered McMullin to pay $12,000 and Quan to pay $8000 to the attorneys who successfully resisted the efforts of the late Dr. Fleming's relatives to secure the property. Of the $20,000 it is said half will go to Judge Daniel Dillon, senior counsel for the defense, and the other half in equal parts to his associates, T. J. Rowe and Joseph S. Laurie.

ST. LOUISAN IN PHILIPPINES

Henry W. Perry, Former Member of Rainwater Rifles, Now Duty Sergeant of His Company.

SERGT. HENRY W. PERRY.

Henry W. Perry, a former member of the Rainwater Rifles of the First Regiment, N. G. M., is now in the Philippines with Company C., Thirteenth U. S. Infantry.

Since his enlistment two years ago Mr. Perry has been promoted to the position of duty sergeant of his company. He is also acting commissary sergeant of his company and company clerk.

When last heard from by St. Louis friends Sergt. Perry was stationed in Manila, but wrote that his company might be sent to the island of Mindanao to fight the Moros.

Sergt. Perry is a photographer, and has a large collection of views he took about Manila. Sergt. Perry is well known in the southwestern portion of St. Louis, having formerly been employed at the Christy Fire Clay Co.'s plant. He was also a member of the Arial Quartet, singing second bass.

WOMAN HURT IN COLLISION.

Two Men Also Injured in Trolley Accidents Monday.

Mrs. E. Hyde of 907 North Theresa avenue was bruised on her arms and face and Joseph Zengel of 3121 Cherokee street was cut about the head in a collision between a Cherokee and a Bellefontaine car at California avenue and Cherokee street Monday afternoon. Both were passengers on the Cherokee street car. It jumped the tracks while rounding a curve and crashed into the Bellefontaine car.

Joel B. Makes of 610 Gratiot street sustained a fracture of the right arm Monday afternoon in a collision between a Spring avenue car and a wagon which he was driving.

NINETY-SIX ARE MISSING.

Survivors of German Steamship Accident Give This Report.

HAMBURG, July 22.—The survivors of the steamship Primus of Hamburg, which, with 185 passengers on board, was cut in two and sunk by the tug Hansa yesterday, say that 96 of those who were on board that vessel at the time of the disaster are missing.

GARDNER HAD MONEY TO DROWN

Roll of Bills Tossed On Deck of a Launch Blew Into River and May Come Through Faucet.

There are men who have money to burn,
And its ashes they strew 'round the town,
But today we are given to learn
Of a man who has money to drown.

St. Louisans who use filters will have no chance against the filterless element to rake in from the muddy Mississippi any of the roll of greenbacks which Russell E. Gardner lost overboard from his yacht at Alton Monday afternoon.

Mr. Gardner's roll is at the bottom of high water, or disintegrated and mixed with the mud which pours out of the city faucets. Who knows but his next bath will be in water partly mixed with $10 bills?

Mr. Gardner is a cheerful man, who believes in enjoying life. Much of his time is spent on the river, aboard his launch, the Annie Russell. Monday he took a party of friends to the Piasa Chautauqua, and after the services there he invited a bevy of young women to go for a sail. The girls, while going up the river, suggested that a stop at Alton, with a trolley ride and an ice cream saloon visit, would be jolly.

Mr. Gardner had his launch nosed into the Alton bank, but when the girls reached the gangplank they hesitated. From the upper deck the host called out:

"Ahoy, there! What's the trouble?"

After some delay one of the girls explained that in their haste to board the boat at Piasa they had left their purses behind. They could not pay carfare and ice cream bills without a little change, and—

"Don't let that worry you," said Mr. Gardner. "See if this will be enough."

He tossed a large wad of bills down to the girls. It alighted on the deck. The young women made for it delightedly, but a puff of wind carried a major portion of the wad into the river.

A negro fished out a $10 bill with a crooked stick, and the girls picked up four tens and a one on the deck. The remainder of the money sank to rise no more.

Mr. Gardner declined to tell how much was in the roll.

"It's a trifling matter," he said.

Among those on the launch were Mr. and Mrs. Russell E. Gardner, Misses Mary, Martha and Louise Scott of Jerseyville, the Misses Ewald and mother of Vandeventer place, Mrs. W. M. Sauvage of Alton, Miss Anna Spencer of Jerseyville, Miss Cerf of St. Louis, the Misses Smith and mother of St. Louis, E. C. Haagen of Alton, J. L. Stephens, brother of ex-Gov. Stephens, and Guy Smith of St. Louis.

Georgia the Peach State.

From the New York Sun.

The peach season in New York will for the first time this year reveal Georgia as the chief peach producing state. Ten years ago the four chief peach producing states were Maryland, Delaware, New Jersey and Georgia, in the order named, the number of peach-bearing trees, while in the other Maryland, 6,100,000; Delaware, 4,520,000; New Jersey, 4,400,000; Georgia, 2,780,000.

Since then Georgia has largely increased its number of peach-bearig trees, while in the other states there has been a decrease, the figures reported in 1901 being as follows:

Georgia, 7,060,000; Maryland, 4,015,000; New Jersey, 2,700,000; Delaware, 2,400,000.

THE KING'S FIRST STEPS

Report Says That the Stricken British Monarch Walked a Little Yesterday.

LONDON, July 22.—The weather was less disagreeable at Cowes, Isle of Wight, this morning, and the reports from the royal yacht Victoria and Albert continue to chronicle King Edward's improvement. It is said that he walked a few steps yesterday.

The King will hold his first council since A. J. Balfour became premier on board the yacht shortly. It is expected that the name of the new lord lieutenant of Ireland, to succeed Earl Cadogan, whose resignation was made public July 17, will then be announced.

HELENA, Mont., July 22.—Mrs. R. M. Durfee, the wife of County Attorney Durfee, of Phillipsburg, was shot and probably fatally wounded in a mysterious manner in Missoula last night. Mrs. Durfee was returning home from her dressmakers. She did not see anyone and there is absolutely no clue.

BONNY BRIDE'S PLEADING WON

Miss Bonnie Dills Induced Clayton Marriage License Clerk to Arise at Midnight and Issue Document.

Miss Bonnie B. Dills and Henry F. Rehfeldt of Decatur, Ill., pleaded so earnestly under the window of Deputy Recorder Wetzel's residence on Bonhomme avenue, Clayton, at midnight Monday night that he came down stairs and issued them a license.

Mr. Wetzel was tired Monday night and didn't get up until his doorbell had been rung repeatedly. Then he opened a front window and inquired what was wanted.

Rehfeldt told him he wanted a license, but Wetzel announced that it was too late.

"Oh, please give us one tonight!" pleaded Miss Dills. "It isn't our fault that we are so late. The cars were blocked and we had to wait a long time, or we would have been out here earlier."

Her plea won the official over.

"I'll issue the license this time," he said, with mock severity, "but if this happens again I'll raise the price."

The couple routed Rev. Mr. Stoltz out of bed to marry them after departing from the Wetzel residence. They were accompanied by two other couples.

Rehfeldt at first said he was a St. Louisan, but after he secured the license he explained that he, as well as his bride, was from Decatur.

Mr. Wetzel says they were fashionably dressed.

End of the Big War Tax.

From the Chicago Record-Herald.

The last of the war taxes, imposed to defray the expenses of our intervention in Cuba, which were wiped out on Monday with the close of the fiscal year, furnishes occasion for reverting to the fact that no country ever raised a war fund with such ease, with such slight inconvenience to the people, and with such popular acquiescence in the purpose for which it was levied.

NEW YORK, July 22.—Even while the United States Court is considering the merger of the Northwestern roads, a giant consolidation of roads directly affecting St. Louis is under way.

This new combination is designed to affect a monopoly of the railroad traffic between St. Louis, Chicago and the gulf and lower Atlantic cities.

It will embrace roads with an aggregate of more than 20,000 miles of track, it will call for a new securities company of probably $400,000,000 capital, represented in several different roads, and will bring several of the southern states within absolute grasp of one corporation.

It will be a combination that will kill competition in the great field involved that may hold farmers and manufacturers at its mercy and may regulate traffic to suit any motive.

The decision of the United States courts as to the validity of the Northwestern merger is in one sense awaited by the new combination and in another sense is not.

Several months must elapse before the final details of this great railroad coup are arranged.

If, in the meantime, the Hill-Morgan plan is indorsed by the highest courts in the land, the Northern Securities Co. will be accepted as a model for this new corporation.

If the decision is not arrived at or is adverse to the merger of Northern Pacific, a modified plan, warranted to escape legal demolition, will be adopted, a plan which the lawyers of the mergers, profiting by recent experiences, promise to be invulnerable.

The new combination will practically unify four direct and indirect routes between the lake region and the southern coast.

WEBER REFUSED NEW TRIAL.

Judgment Against Kirkwood Alderman Must Stand Unless Appeal Is Taken.

A new trial was refused yesterday by Judge J. W. McElhinney of the Circuit Court at Clayton in the case of Theodore Weber against Dennis Lane and other members of the Kirkwood Board of Aldermen.

Weber had been awarded judgment for $500, which was $20,000 less than he sued for, and the defendants asked for a new trial on the ground that improper remarks had been made before the jury. They may appeal to the Supreme Court.

The suit was the result of an investigation into the conduct of Weber's saloon and the refusal of a permit.

CORPORATION WAR GOOD FOR CITY

Saved New York Over $4,000,000 on Tunnel.

ESTIMATE WAS CUT IN TWO

BROOKLYN RAPID TRANSIT WANTED THE CONTRACT.

But Belmont-McDonald Company, Which Is Closely Allied With Pennsylvania Railroad, Lowered Its Bid by Half.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, July 22.—This city has made anywhere from $4,000,000 to $6,000,000 as the result of business rivalry between the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Co. and the Belmont-McDonald people, who are to operate the Rapid Transit tunnel in Manhattan.

If more corporations should fall out the city might soon be prosperous.

It had been decided that a tunnel should be built from New York to Brooklyn and bids were asked for by the city.

These were opened late yesterday and it was found that the Brooklyn Rapid Transit had offered to do the work for $8,000,000, the Belmont-McDonald people bid $4,000,000, or about one-half what the city's engineers had decided it would cost.

The McDonald bid carries with it the proposition to tunnel under Broadway from Union Square to Forty-second street, with a connection at Thirty-fourth street, the main station of the Pennsylvania road. This offer will almost surely be accepted by the board.

Back of this extremely low bid—a bid which on its face looks like a very poor business proposition—lies an interesting story.

It is generally understood that the Belmont-McDonald combination is closely allied with the Pennsylvania Railroad Co. The Pennsylvania has very ambitious plans for New York and vicinity.

It is essential to the full success of these plans that the Pennsylvania or its closely allied friends shall control the proposed East river tunnel. It is almost equally important to the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Co. that this tunnel shall be in its control.

With absolute sway over 95 per cent of the surface railroad lines of Brooklyn, and with the old East river bridge as its one outlet to Manhattan, there are obviously very strong reasons why it should seek to control the new East river tunnel. With this end in view, the Brooklyn Rapid Transia Co. made very close and very careful estimates for the costs for the work to be done.

For sixty days expert engineers have been engaged in testing and perfecting these estimates. Yesterday the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Co. submitted a bid of $8,000,000, or just double that of the Belmont-McDonald combination.

The Belmont bid of $4,000,000 is equivalent to paying a premium of almost, if not quite, $4,000,000 for the privilege of building and controlling the East river tunnel.

The Rapid Transit commissioners are jubilant over the turn affairs have taken, and there is not one chance in a thousand but that the Belmont-McDonald combination will get the contract. It is the opinion of men who have made a study of the tunnel system that the bitter rivalry between these two great transit forces has resulted in a saving to the people of about $4,000,000. Contractor McDonald said to a Post-Dispatch correspondent:

"It will cost us at least $10,000,000 to build the Brooklyn tunnel, but we can afford to build it at a great loss because we need it in our business. We can build it with greater ease now than at any other time, for we have all the machinery on hand. If we get the contract we hope to finish the tunnel in the contract time of two years. We will have the Broadway branch in operation by that time, too, if the contract is awarded to us."

SPOONER A SENATE LEADER

Next to Allison, He Is Said to Be Most Influential Man in Congress.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, July 22.—Senator Spooner is a national character. He does not belong to Wisconsin alone, but to the entire country, and it would be regarded here as a national calamity if he were not returned to the Senate.

No man is indispensible in public life. The assassination of Lincoln and McKinley, the death of Grant and other great men proves that. They disappear, but the waters close over them and the tide rises and falls as before.

Somebody is always ready to fill a vacancy. In battles the lines close as fast as men are shot down, and it is so in politics. If Mr. Spooner should not be returned to the Senate there would be somebody to take his place, of course, but no one could acquire his usefulness without his experience and his peculiar talent for conciliating opposing forces.

Spooner was the author of several of the most important measures passed at the last session. He wrote the law granting civil government to the Philippine Islands. He proposed the compromise isthmus canal bill that was finally adopted, and the Cuban reciprocity proposition, as supported by the Republican majority in the Senate, is his. He has a peculiar faculty for framing legislation, and writes a bill better than any other man in the Senate. He is no more useful than Allison; perhaps not so much so. Mr. Allison is without doubt the most influential man in Congress, and accomplishes more than any other, but that is due to the position he occupies at the head of the committee on appropriations as well as to his ability and experience. Spooner comes next.

NEGRO SERVANT WINS ESTATE

Supports His Right Under Missouri Bachelor's Will to the Exclusion of Relatives.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

HUNTSVILLE, Mo., July 22.—Granville Wilson's $24,000 goes to his old negro servant, to the exclusion of all his relatives.

Wilson, who was a bachelor, died Dec. 28, 1898, leaving Press Oliver his sole beneficiary. Relatives sought to break the will on the ground of duress and undue influence, but the circuit court, presided over by Judge John A. Hockaday, has upheld the will.

Republicans to Give Excursion.—The Twenty-eighth Ward Republican League Club will give a steamboat excursion Aug. 16. The steamer Hill City has been chartered for the occasion and the excursion will be a very enjoyable affair. The admission will be by invitation.

Wedding at Salvation.—A hallelujah wedding will take place at the Salvation Army hall, 1413 Franklin avenue, Thursday, July 24. Capts. Isaacs and Sauerwine will be united and Brigadier and Mrs. Marshall, chief provincial officers of the Midland Division, will officiate. Officers from all over the country will be present.

BLIND-FOLD.

Blindfold a woman and she loses all confidence in herself. Her step is slow, hesitating and uncertain. Her hands are raised to ward the imaginary blows which threaten her. When a sick woman seeks the means of health she is often like a woman blindfold. She has no confidence. She cannot tell what her effort will lead to. She turns now to this side and then to the other in uncertainty and doubt.

The sick woman who uses Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription may do so with absolute confidence. It invites open-eyed investigation. There need be no hesitation in following the hundreds of thousands of women who have found a perfect cure for womanly ills in the use of this medicine.

"Favorite Prescription" cures irregularity and dries weakening drains. It heals inflammation and ulceration and cures female weakness.

"With a heart full of gratitude to you for sending out over the land your wonderful medicine I send these few lines, hoping that some poor suffering women will try Dr. Pierce's medicines," writes Mrs. Cora L. Root, of Greenspring Furnace, Washington Co., Maryland. "I had suffered severly from female weakness and had to be in bed a great deal of the time. Had headache, backache, and pain in left side when lying down. I commenced taking Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, and had not taken two bottles when I was able to be around again and do my work with but little pain. Can now eat anything and it never hurts me any more. Have taken seven bottles of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, and one of his 'Compound Extract of Smart-Weed and several vials of his 'Pleasant Pellets.' Feeling better every day. My husband says I look better every day."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure biliousness and sick headache.

WORLD CHANGES MARY MACLANE

Seeing It Has Reduced Her Self-Conceit.

"NOT SO CRUDE AS I WAS."

NO LONGER REGARDS HERSELF AS A GENIUS.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., July 22.—Mary MacLane, who has arrived at Cambridge, to enter Radcliffe College, talked today on many topics. She said:

"I like people. I like almost everybody and I love a few dear friends. The only thing for which I really care is the love of these people—five women in Butte, two in Chicago and Miss Corbin, who is always my 'anemone lady.'"

"Haven't you been sorry, caring for Miss Corbin as you do, that you mentioned her name in your book, and so caused her a great deal of annoyance?"

"Oh, no. Of course, I do not like to feel that she had been troubled, but she was a part of my life, and it was necessary for the book's truth that she should be in the book.

"The book, you understand, was not written for publication. It was the portrayal of my emotions, the analysis of my own soul life during three months of my 19th year. I wrote them all the time, just as I do now, but, though the book is in diary form, it is not a diary. Just why I sent it to the publisher would be hard to say. But when I finished it, I felt that it was literature, because it is real and because it is well written. And I know the world wants such things."

"Are you as sure now, as you were then, that you are a genius?"

"No. You think me crude, and probably I am crude, but I am not so crude as I was, for I am clever enough to see that the girl of 19, who thought herself a genius, was only an unusual girl, writing her heart out. I am not interested now in my book, and I am not at all impressed by the people who say 'So glad to meet you, Miss MacLane. Liked your book so much.'"

"That kind of thing means nothing to me. I am just glad of the book because it has opened for me the way to future writing."

It was suggested to Miss MacLane that some persons say her book is vulgar.

"O, but they are wrong," she replied quickly. "Am I vulgar? Do you feel me to be vulgar as well as crude? Well, if I am not vulgar, neither is my book. I wrote it myself. Suggestiveness is always vulgar, but the truth, never. My book is not remotely suggestive. I call things by their names. That is all."

"Yes, but why such curious names? Why all about the devil, for instance?"

"Simply because that word was less hackneyed than 'Prince' or 'Ideal.' All girls of 19 are waiting for somebody that many of them call the 'prince,' many of them, their 'ideal.' I called him by 'devil, with steel gray eyes.' But that has passed. That was all a part of being 19.

"I don't think I like Cambridge. Perhaps I shall like Boston better. If I can study chemistry at the Institute of Technology I shall wish to live in Boston. There I can hear music. I do not sing nor play, but I adore music, particularly Chopin. I like him because I cannot understand him."

Mary MacLane has not yet applied for admission to Radcliffe. Until she does, Radcliffe will not take action. It is not thought here by some persons that she ever intended to enter Radcliffe. Her publisher is credited with that idea.

FELL 100 FEET AND MAY LIVE

Young Georgian Stepped Off "Devil's Pulpit" Precipice.

TREE PARTIALLY BROKE FALL

NOT A BONE WAS FRACTURED, THOUGH HE ALIGHTED ON ROCKS.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

TALULLAH FALLS, Ga., July 22.—Edward Lyndon of Athens, the son of A. J. Lyndon, stepped off "The Devil's Pulpit," while viewing Talullah Falls by moonlight and plunged one hundred feet to the jagged rocks below. Not a bone in his body was broken and his complete recovery is expected.

The gorgeous view of the falls by moonlight attracted many visitors to the edge of the precipice last week. Young Lyndon heard of the magnificent spectacle and resolved to see it. It was after midnight when the full moon rose high enough in the heavens for the light to reach the surging waters of the Talullah as they tumble over the ledge and roar down into the dark chasm below. Lyndon, who had been sitting up for this event, started out alone about midnight from the hotel.

Reaching the vicinity of the falls he chose a path leading to "Devil's Pulpit," which overhangs a chasm so deep that few can look down into it without a sensation of dizziness. He went too near the ledge and stepped off into the dark when he reached the "Pulpit." Headlong into the black chasm he plunged, turning over and over in the descent.

Seventy feet below the ledge a tree jutted out of the chasm wall. Lyndon clutched at it as his body crashed into its foliage. He grasped a bough, but the tree came up by the roots and again he found himself diving headlong down, down toward the jagged rocks below. The fall into the tree had slackened the speed of his descent so that he struck on the rocks with reduced momentum. He was stunned, of course, and lay as one dead when he landed at the bottom of the chasm.

A party viewing the falls from another point heard a wild cry and a crash, but they did not dream the noise came from one falling over the precipice. They were the only persons in the vicinity at that hour, and when they left the falls young Lyndon had only the thundering cataract and the towering walls of the chasm for company when he regained consciousness some time later. He began to cry out for help, but not a human being was within range of his voice.

After daylight his friends missed him and began a search, which led up the ledge from which he had tumbled. Here they heard him faintly calling. A rope was secured and let down to him. This he fastened to his body and they drew him up.

Dr. P. N. Deboeay was in the rescuing party and he made an examination of the young man's injuries. He was astonished to find that only a few severe bruises and no broken bones were evident. He said internal injuries may develop, but he has high hopes for the young man's recovery very shortly.

CHESS MASTERS MEET.

Gunsberg Beats Gottschaoll; Popiel and Suechting Draw.

HANOVER, Prussia, July 22.—Round one of the Berger system furnished the pairing for the second round of the chess masters' international tourney, begun yesterday, under the auspices of the German Chess Association in this city and the players therefore faced each other as follows: Swiderskivs Mieses, Mason vs. Olland, Levin vs. Marshall, Cohn vs. Wolf, Gottschall vs. Gunsberg, Tschigorin vs. Atkins, Pillsbury vs. Lapier, Janowski vs. Bardeleben, and Popiel vs. Suechting. The usual adjournment was made at 1 o'clock this afternoon, when two games had been decided. Gunsberg beat Gottschall and Popiel and Suechting agreed upon a draw shortly before the adjournment was taken.

The onlookers were greatly surprised owing to the American Napier (correct) managing to get a superior position against his countryman, Pillsbury, and it was thought here that the latter would lose the game when play was resumed in the afternoon. The American player, Marshall, also had a winning chance against Levin, but the other games were adjourned in even positions.

Up to date Gunsberg has won one and one-half; Atkins, Bardeleben, Janowski, Mieses, Olland and Wolf one each, and Pillsbury, Popiel, Suechting, Swiderski and Tschigorin one-half game each.

ENFORCE THE LAW.

According to Assistant Health Commissioner Francis, the strict letter of the law is not followed by the garbage contractor because "he is asked to do other things he is not required to do by ordinance."

This seems a queer excuse.

The law requires the contractor to do certain things, but the officers of the Health Department relieve him of this requirement on condition that he do other things which they think ought to be done. The law is suspended and the wish of the officials is put in its place.

Now, it is no doubt true that the officials of the department know many things that ought to be done and if they can get the contractor to do voluntarily what he is not required to do by law the city will not suffer. But when did they get the dispensing power? When was authority granted them to bargain away the obligation of the contract?

Mr. Francis cites cases of voluntary work done by the contractor, and nobody will complain of this service. But wouldn't it be wiser to first enforce the law and perform the contract? Afterward we can talk about voluntary services.

This happy-go-lucky fashion of doing public business is sure to produce confusion.

Enforce the law.

CONTROL OF RIVER FLOODS.

The present great and destructive flood makes it once more evident that very much more must be done than has been accomplished to guard against such catastrophes. The overflow of our rivers, as in ancient and modern Egypt, should be a beneficent event rather than a source of ruin. This will only be the case when we have learned to control river floods.

Egypt did it by a system of huge reservoirs and a complete network of ditches, dams and floodgates. The people sacrificed the portion of their lands necessary, in order to save the rest. The result was safety and added fertility.

In British Guiana, the richest lands are subject to periodical overflow and would be practically worthless but for the costly dams, canals and ditches which take up the annual floods and divert them from the plantations. In this case, also, some land has been sacrificed in order to save the rest.

As long as we depend almost entirely on levees, we shall be in danger from floods. The flood-water must have somewhere to flow besides the ordinary channels. And every foot of earth taken from a reservoir or ditch helps to elevate the rest of the land and make it safer. If vast swamps can be rescued for agriculture, why should we permit rivers to turn our crop-laden fields into swamps just when crops are at their best? By united action in digging the necessary reservoirs and channels and building the necessary dams, we may be as free from floods as is Holland, whose people can boast that "God may have made the water, but we made the land."

A JAPANESE IDEAL.

A Japanese lady who has herself been a teacher tells what the Japanese ideal of the teacher's calling is.

"A teacher," she says, "must be a builder of good character of the pupils, developing their good traits and checking their bad."

Another requirement is "her own good deportment—a teacher's behavior has more power over her pupils than her words."

This requirement is not always enforced in this country, where the main thing seems to be to hammer useful facts into childish heads. The fact that the teacher is a model which the children unconsciously tend to imitate is not always regarded. She should be a model of breeding and manner.

Again: The teacher's important characteristics are "patience, sympathy and love—she ought to teach, not because it is her profession, but because she loves the work and loves the pupils. If a teacher only has a true love for the pupils, a little defect in her character, a little lack of knowledge will not concern much, for love conquers all things."

"Love conquers all things." That has a familiar sound. How does it happen that a truth taught by all Christians and neglected in practice by so many, is lived and sweetly preached by an outlandish person, one of a people hitherto considered inferior?

Concluding, this heathen lady says: "Though the work may not be a brilliant one, yet it is noble. After many years' earnest effort, it must be a joy to think that she has done something for the country and for the world."

The Japanese ideal is not lower than the American. And perhaps it is more nearly realized in practice.

FAME—$1500 WORTH.

Gov. Richard Yates may find it difficult to render himself as famous by having $1500 worth of photographs taken as did his father by guiding the great state of Illinois through the perilous period of the civil war. Still, fame is a thing for which most governors are striving, especially most youthful governors, and perhaps they are justified in employing all legitimate means to secure that end.

However, Gov. Yates is not employing an original plan to achieve immortality, or, what is just as profitable, contemporary fame; for posing for photographs has for many years been the particular fad of actresses. But perhaps too much should not be expected from a boy governor whose head is bowed down with cares of state. How can we reasonably expect such an one to be original? He is not even the original Yates.

But, having invested in $1500 worth of fame, the governor might at least learn a lesson from the actress, who knows full well the value of a new pose and a pleasing "write-up," and distributes these photographs where they will do the most good. We are informed that he intends to send them to the different state institutions. These institutions are already officered by his political friends, because they are his political appointees. He should cause them to be placed in the hands or before the eyes of those who are not already prejudiced in his favor. If he confines them to the state institutions, with a change of administration, they may be swept into the cellar or stored in the garret, where, however the moth may corrupt, no admiring thief will break through to steal.

Go to the actress, thou governor; consider her ways and be wise.

DON'T TRIFLE WITH THE PUBLIC HEALTH.

The pure-milk bill now before the House of Delegates was framed and passed through the Council in response to a practically unanimous popular demand.

Will the House of Delegates give effect to this public desire, or will it yield to the solicitations of the lobby?

The only opponents of the measure are those who directly or indirectly are making a profit out of the sale of milk unfit for use.

Investigation shows that much of the milk now sold is adulterated, diluted and doctored. Diseased and swill-fed cows supply much of this death-dealing fluid.

The House of Delegates will assume a grave responsibility if these nefarious practices are allowed to continue.

The ordinance provides for thorough and systematic inspection under the direction of the city chemist, who is made responsible. The provisions are along the lines of common sense, and while affording protection to the consumer do no injustice to honest dealers. The only persons who can have any interest in opposing the passage of the ordinance are the men who have trifled with the public health.

It is a matter affecting life and health, and only one course of action will meet the need—the swift passage of the ordinance.

NOVELS IN THE NEWS.

Jules Verne, prince of romancers, says in a recent issue of the Post-Dispatch that the days of the novel are numbered. It will be displaced by the newspaper. Here are some of his reasons for the change

"Newspaper writers have learned to color everyday events so well that to read them will give posterity a truer picture than the historic or descriptive novel could do, and as for the novel psychological, that will soon cease to be, and will die of inanition in your own lifetime."

"The real psychology of life is in its news, and more truth—truth with a big T—can be gathered from the police court story, the railway accident, from the everyday doings of the crowd, and from the battles of the future, than can be obtained if an attempt is made to clothe the psychological moral in a garb of fiction."

Careful newspaper readers, however, will realize that it is not the slow, dry-as-dust newspaper, edited without sympathy or insight, that will take the place of the novel. Only the newspaper that can clothe fact in that garb of romance which is ever present in life, but which genius alone perceives, will survive and satisfy. This does not mean that the newspaper will be untrue to facts. It means that newspaper work will demand the highest talent the world has at its disposal.

A Barbed Wire Boundary.

From the Springfield (Mass.) Republican.

It has been suggested that a barbed wire fence be built along the international boundary line in northern Montana to aid the customs officials in patroling the border and enforcing the tariff laws. As it is now, cattle particularly cause trouble. They are worth about 20 per cent more on this side of the line than the other, and seem to know it, for it is said they have a way of drifting in this direction when human beings are not visible to the eye of the guardians against smuggling. But it is found that if the fence is built at the joint expense of the two governments it will be much cheaper to have Canada furnish the wire, even though it comes from the United States. This is because the steel trusts are selling wire to outside countries at lower prices than they are charging to home consumers. A fence constructed on those terms would be a fine illustration of how the trusts are working to undo the home market while the government is engaged in fencing it in.

SKINKER ROAD.

Well, I'll be blowed!
They're trying to change the name of
Skinker road,
That famous by-way,
So soon to be an international highway!
Who dares to tinker
With the now celebrated name of Skinker,
And raise a clamor,
To do away with all the rosy glamor
Which clusters round it,
And with some other lesser name confound
it?
Who dares to draw the long bow
And change it to the Avenue Rochambeau,
Defying the severity
Of the present and posterity?

Who ever heard of such hard-faced temer ity?
Change Skinker road,
Through which that drunken stream, Des
Peres, once flowed?
Impossible!
It can't be done. No, never! Might as well
Try to revise the version
Of all the laws laid down by Mede and Persian;
Might just as well expect the Sphinx
To gallop round o'er hilly golfing links,
As to expect to change
That famous name to something new and strange.
It will go thundering
Adown the aisles of time and set folks wondering—
Its origin a mystery—
Long after the World's Fair is part of history.
Hooray for Skinker road!
They're trying to change its name. Well,
I'll be blowed!

Every Man His Own Poet.

Every man is a poet at heart. Those poets who become famous are only men of exceptional power. So is every man a fighter, but some men are better fighters than others. That is why they get a reputation at it. They devote their lives to it. Same way with poets. They make the writing of rhymes or verses their sole care and occupation.

Many persons say: "I couldn't make a rhyme to save my life." But they could. They lack facility of expression because they have never cultivated it, just as the ordinary man lacks good hard muscle, because he has never developed it. He has the foundation, all right, but he is too busy with the affairs of life to build upon it.

So with poetry. Every man has the elements of it in his soul, though it may never find expression either in speech or writing. The man who loves a flower is a poet. The ignorant day laborer who signs his name "John Smith, his mark," is a poet when he hugs to his breast the soiled-faced baby whose laughter is music in his ears. The murderous footpad is a poet when his heart softens under the gaze of a little child. The busy, mercenary financier is a poet when he pauses to admire a fine building or a beautiful bit of sky. The tough "ragger" is a poet when he sits on the moonlit deck of an excursion steamer and sips beer with the vulgar looking girl to whom he is making love.

We are all poets. Some of us are better poets than others. That is the only difference.

How can the poets possibly work up any sentiment over the new olive drab uniforms of our soldiery? But the change may have the effect of killing off a lot of bad verse and illustrated songs.

"Them sheep is yourn" is said to be the most ungrammatical sentence in the English language, but it is hard to beat "All things comes to them that waits," which was actually heard in a St. Louis street car.

Our busy novelists are grinding out books so fast that they don't even have time to hunt new names. We have "Dorothy Vernon of Haddon Hall," and now another writer—not from Indiana, where the greatest novel factory on earth is located—has given us "Mistress Dorothy of Haddon Hall." The next one will probably be "Mistress Vernon of Dorothy Hall."

Undoubtedly "F. H.," who says that he has "only lately come from Boston," and who informs the public that his "lady friend" will not go to Forest Park with him "because of the many suicides there," is sailing under false pretenses. One thing is certain. He is not Boston-bred. Perhaps the reason that he has "only lately come from Boston" is because the Bostonese got onto his use of such expressions as "my lady friend" and invited him to leave.

THE COMING WOMAN OF GERMANY.

From the London Graphic.

Although German poets vie with each other in extolling the "eternal feminine ideal," there is no country where the emancipation of women which forms the great feature of modern life among ourselves and in the United States has made so little progress. An amusing instance of this occurred some days ago in the Prussian Chamber of Deputies, on an interpellation as to the right of women to take part in political meetings. The minister of the interior, with his hair on end, his face pale with emotion and a voice quivering with excitement, replied that, although it would not legally be permissible to bar the door against a woman desirous of attending a political gathering, every possible means should be taken to prevent her from speaking. In other words, he declared, amid cheers from the greater part of the house, that women, like children, should be seen but not heard. Womenphobia has always been a German characteristic. The admission of women into the civil service met with the most violent opposition in Germany long after female clerks and telegraphists had been successfully employed in England and in France. The right of women to practice medicine was called in question only three years ago, when a committee of experts declared that the idea was too preposterous to be seriously discussed. In 1899 a proposal to establish gymnasia for girls was likened by the Prussian minister of worship "to a little spark which should be put out at once, lest it should break into a flame." But there are many signs that even the German woman is growing impatient of her part as upper housemaid, and in the consciousness of being a thinking entity, with a separate life of her own, demands to take her share in the national public life.

POST-DISPATCH SERIES OF FAMOUS FUNNY STORIES.

STORY OF THE BAD LITTLE BOY.

By MARK TWAIN.

Once there was a bad little boy whose name was Jim—though, if you will notice, you will find that bad little boys are nearly always called James in your Sunday school books. It was strange, but still it was true that this one was called Jim.

He didn't have any sick mother either—a sick mother who was pious and had the consumption, and would be glad to lie down in the grave and be at rest but for the strong love she bore her boy, and the anxiety she felt that the world might be harsh and cold towards him when she was gone. Most bad boys in the Sunday books are named James, and have sick mothers, who teach them to say, "Now, I lay me down," etc., and sing them to sleep with sweet, plaintive voices, and then kiss them good-night, and kneel down by the bedside and weep. But it was different with this fellow. He was named Jim, and there wasn't anything the matter with his mother—no consumption, nor anything of that kind. She was rather stout than otherwise, and she was not pious; moreover, she was not anxious on Jim's account. She said if he were to break his neck it wouldn't be much loss. She always spanked Jim to sleep, and she never kissed him good-night; on the contrary she boxed his ears when she was ready to leave him.

Once this little bad boy stole the key of the pantry, and slipped in there and helped himself to some jam, and filled up the vessel with tar, so that his mother would never know the difference; but all at once a terrible feeling didn't come over him, and something didn't seem to whisper to him, "Is it right to disobey my mother? Isn't it sinful to do this? Where do bad little boys go who gobble up their good kind mother's jam?" and then he didn't kneel down all alone and promise never to be wicked any more, and rise up with a light, happy heart, and go and tell his mother all about it, and beg her forgiveness, and be blessed by her with tears of pride and thankfulness in her eyes. No; that is the way with all other bad boys in the books; but it happened otherwise with this Jim, strangely enough. He ate that jam, and said it was bully, in his sinful, vulgar way; and he put in the tar, and said that was bully also, and laughed, and observed "that the old woman would get up and snort" when she found it out; and when she did find it out, he denied knowing anything about it, and she whipped him severely, and he did the crying himself. Everything about this boy was curious—everything turned out differently with him from the way it does to the bad Jameses in the books.

Once he climbed up in Farmer Acorn's apple tree to steal apples, and the limb didn't break, and he didn't fall and break his arm, and get torn by the farmer's great dog, and then languish on a sick bed for weeks and repent and become good. Oh! no; he stole as many apples as he wanted and came down all right; and he was all ready for the dog too, and knocked him endways with a brick when he came to tear him. It was very strange—nothing like it ever happened in those mild little books with marbled backs, and with pictures in them of men with swallow-tailed coats and bell-crowned hats, and pantaloons that are short in the legs, and women with the waists of their dresses under their arms, and no hoops on. Nothing like it in any of the Sunday school books.

Once he stole the teacher's penknife, and, when he was afraid it would be found out and he would get whipped, he slipped it into George Wilson's cap—poor Widow Wilson's son, the moral boy, the good little boy of the village, who always obeyed his mother, and never told an untruth, and was fond of his lessons, and infatuated with Sunday school. And when the knife dropped from the cap, and poor George hung his head and blushed, as if in conscious gilt, and the grieved teacher charged the theft upon him, and was just in the very act of bringing the switch down upon his trembling shoulders, a white-haired, improbable justice of the peace did not suddenly appear in their midst, and strike an attitude and say, "Spare this noble boy—there stands the cowering culprit! I was passing the school door at recess, and unseen myself, I saw the theft committed!" And then Jim didn't get whaled, and the venerable justice didn't read the tearful school a homily, and take George by the hand and say such a boy deserved to be exalted, and then tell him to come and make his home with him, and sweep out the office, and make fires, and run errands, and chop wood, and study law, and help his wife do household labors, and have all the balance of the time to play, and get 40 cents a month, and be happy. No; it would have happened that way in the books, but it didn't happen that way to Jim. No meddling old clam of a justice dropped in to make trouble, and so the model boy George got thrashed, and Jim was glad of it because, you know, Jim hated moral boys. Jim said he was "down on them milksops." Such was the coarse language of this bad, neglected boy.

But the strangest thing that ever happened to Jim was the time he went boating on Sunday, and didn't get drowned, and that other time that he got caught out in the storm when he was fishing on Sunday, and didn't get struck by lightning. Why, you might look, and look, all through the Sunday school books from now till Christmas, and you would never come across anything like this. Oh, no; you would find that all the bad boys who go boating on Sunday invariably get drowned; and all the bad boys who get caught out in storms when they are fishing on Sunday infallibly get struck by lightning. Boats with bad boys in them always upset on Sunday, and it always storms when bad boys go fishing on the Sabbath. How this Jim ever escaped is a mystery to me.

This Jim bore a charmed life—that must have been the way of it. Nothing could hurt him. He even gave the elephant in the menagerie a plug of tobacco, and the elephant didn't knock the top of his head off with his trunk. He browsed around the cupboard after essence of peppermint, and didn't make a mistake and drink aqua fortis. He stole his father's gun, and went hunting on the Sabbath, and didn't shoot three or four fingers off. He struck his little sister on the temple with his fist when he was angry, and she didn't linger in pain through long summer days, and die with sweet words of forgiveness upon her lips that redoubled the anguish of his breaking heart. No; she got over it. He ran off and went to sea at last, and didn't come back and find himself sad and alone in the world, his loved ones sleeping in the quiet churchyard, and the vine-embowered home of his boyhood tumbled down and gone to decay. Ah! no; he came home as drunk as a piper, and got into the station house the first thing.

And he grew up and married, and raised a large family, and brained them all with an ax one night, and got wealthy by all manner of cheating and rascality; and now he is the infernalest wickedest scoundrel in his native village, and is universally respected, and belongs to the legislature.

So you see there never was a bad James in the Sunday school books that had such a streak of luck as this sinful Jim with the charmed life.

Misleading Information.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

In your issue of this date you publish "About the Bank of England," Walter Williams in the Columbia Herald. I am afraid Mr. Williams has not made himself thoroughly acquainted with the subject when he says the Bank of England is the only bank in the Kingdom which has the power of issuing paper money. I have not only handled thousands of pounds of paper money issued by the Bank of Ireland, but have seen it printed. There are several banks in Ireland, England and Scotland which issue their own notes. Mr. Williams says: "The Bank of England notes are as good as United States greenbacks." Certainly they are; only better, because they can be exchanged anywhere for gold for their face value; but in no foreign country where I have been could I get greenbacks exchanged except at a discount. Of course greenbacks are as good as gold here, but Bank of England notes command a slight premium over British gold in some places, as I found on purchasing foreign money in Wall street.

Obstructing Trees and Weeds.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I have a complaint to make of a nuisance the neighbors of this locality have had to endure for a long time.

In front of 1438 South Grand avenue a person cannot pass without stooping on account of the trees, the branches of which hang very low. If one should pass in erect position his hat would be removed and his eyes endangered and more especially at night.

At the rear of the same number, which is Carr Lane avenue, it is impossible to pass on account of the very high weeds; we have to walk in the street.

I sincerely hope that the proper officers will attend to this and remove a nuisance we patiently endured for months.

Leaking Gas Pipes.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I read an article in the Post-Dispatch of this date, headed "Leaking Gas Pipes," and signed "Consumer." Consumer's complaint, as far as the gas company is concerned, is both unjust and unreasonable and like many others of its kind is based on ignorance of the subject they discuss. Gas companies lay mains on the streets, lay service pipes from said mains into the cellars, furnish you with meters for the measurement of gas consumed, and properly collect for same, and then their responsibility ceases. Gas must pass entirely through said meter and into house pipes before registering in favor of the company and against the consumer, and if it does, consumer has no kick coming if he must pay for it. The gas company cannot be held responsible in any way for leaks in house pipes and certainly cannot be expected to keep them in repair any more than they would do the plumbing. That is the landlord's or owner's duty. The city also furnishes you with water, but if your house pipes leak or your plumbing gets out of joint I never heard of the city extending its charity in sending you a plumber to make the necessary repairs, but I do know your water will be shut off if you don't attend to it.

When people take a sane view of these questions they will stop registering kicks, or at least kick with reason and common sense. If Consumer does this in the future, he will need no one to look after his interests, as he will be competent to do so himself, will be in no danger of being poisoned by leaking gas pipes, or taking a rise in the world from a gas pipe explosion.

Insidious Habit.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

"Can a man be a Christian and a drunkard at the same time?" Most truly, no. God has said, "Be ye modest and temperate in all that ye do." But, ah, to how many sins do we become addicted through habit, that insidious weapon of the Evil One, which creeps stealthily upon us until its hold becomes one that only God's grace can free us from. Happily, in this as in no other sin is the way of self-denial made easy for us. You mentioned the immune treatment. Do you seek for advice in regard to it? If so, go and talk with the hundreds around our city who were once that awful thing, "A drunkard"; but see them now—useful business men, happy fathers and dutiful sons, caring, as only Christian man can care for those dependent upon him. I speak from actual personal knowledge and with deepest pity for all those held in the bonds of such slavery as you acknowledge.

Two Musical Compositions.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

On last Sunday I was strolling in Tower Grove Park with my 5-year-old boy, and, hearing the band playing, I wended my way to the music pavilion. One of the first numbers I learned from the program was "The Stars and Stripes Forever." Now, Mr. Editor, I have heard this piece rendered before, and it always left a bad taste, but not till last Sunday did I learn its title, and, right here and now, I want to enter a mild protest against said title, as I think it desecrates the stars and stripes instead of enhancing their character. Of all the weirdly fantastic stuff thrown together as music, it is the most uncouth. The burden of the melody is cast in a sad, sickly, melancholy minor key that gives you a bad taste in the mouth, and seems rather to depict the wail of an abandoned soul in purgatory than any resemblance to "Old Glory." Music leaders, who look only to the composer's name to warrant their selections, would do well to leave this out, as it haunts the memory like pitch to the touch, and is well nigh impossible to get rid of.

The "Washington Post," claimed by the same author, is a gem of rarest ray serene, and I'm willing to take off my hat in silent admiration to its charm and genius whenever I hear it rendered. "Lohengrin," "Trovatore" and the rest are no greater in their way than is this beautiful composition in its distinctive class. I recall with pride a recent review of troops in London, where each company of troops was headed by its band. But when the company, whose band played "The Washington Post" passed the reviewing stand, under the inspiration of this beautiful march, "a cheer went up that nearly set the people wild," so the chroniclers state, and I believe it, for there is a charm in every bar of the "Post" march that rouses the most sluggish nature. But, sakes alive, let us draw the line at the other piece. MAJOR KEE.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

With pleasure I read the article in Wednesday's Post-Dispatch regarding those vulgar men and boys who must certainly pride themselves on their indecency.

My business engagements prevented me from adding my protest sooner.

I was on the City of Providence on Sunday evening, returning from the encampment and must say, as a man with a family, I was shocked.

I use the Burlington suburban train daily and on Tuesday evening men were standing on the levee entirely nude, waving their hands at the train passing on the elevated.

In the name of decency and morals why don't the police enforce the law against bathing on the levee?

Not a city in the Union would tolerate this nuisance. Take the entire river front from end to end it is the same. Have our wives, daughters, sisters and sweethearts no consideration from these vile creatures? Would like to have the experience of others on this bathing question.

Agitate the bathhouse bill, perhaps it will pass, then we will have a respectable levee.

Considerate Conductors.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I desire through the columns of your valuable paper to express my sincere and heartfelt thanks to the street car conductors of this city, for, almost without exception, they have treated me with [illegible] attention and courtesy that an elderly woman, nearly blind, can appreciate, and be grateful for. They help me on and off the cars. In one instance a conductor got off his car and helped me to alight. So I desire to thank them again and also the public generally for their kindness and consideration to yours.

REWARD OFFERED FOR CAPT. STRONG

ALL HER DIAMONDS ARE GONE.

FEW CHEAP TRINKETS LEFT IN SAFE DEPOSIT BOX.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, July 22.—A reward of $1000 has been offered by May Yohe for the arrest of Capt. Putnam Bradlee Strong.

This offer quickly followed her discovery that the safety vault had been looted of her jewelry, which, she says, was worth $200,000. Only a baby ring and a few trinkets worth a few cents were left.

Strong is alleged to have been the only person who had access to the vault. The opening of the vault was quite an event. Miss Yohe, her lawyer, her mother, the Strong family lawyer and trust company officials were present. Miss Yohe's eyes were glued on her lawyer as he unlocked the outer door. Slowly he pulled forth the steel drawer. Inside were three cheap little boxes, the rest were jewel boxes, bulging with cotton and wool, but empty of jewels.

"My, my," gasped Miss Yohe, sinking into a nearby chair. "I'm cleaned out. Everything's gone. He's taken everything. I haven't a thing left in the world.

She all but collapsed. Her mother was trembling like a leaf, but her nerve kept up. Mr. Friend hurriedly pried about the compartment, but there was nothing to be found except a few gew-gaws not worth pawning.

It was all over in twenty minutes. Then Mr. Friend went hurrying out. He was at the telephone in a jiffy, calling for Capt. Titus.

"Strong has stolen everything," he shouted. "Get out a general alarm as quick as you can."

"He Has Tricked Me the Last Time."

"He has taken everything I have in the world," cried Miss Yohe. "He has lied and tricked me for the last time."

"Keep quiet, Maisie, please," put in her mother.

"Shut up," she retorted. "I'll talk now as much as I please. Oh, if I could only lay hands on him now! Everything that's left isn't worth $20, and he's taken $200,000. I haven't a thing left in the world."

The only humorous features of the affair are those motherly interruptions of Mrs. Yohe. Hers are not excitedly "I told you so!" expressions, but she makes jabs at the uncomfortable May very often. Plainly Mother Yohe enjoyed being the mother-in-law of a lord better than of a vanishing scamp. Having got her second breath, Miss Yohe began again.

"Arrest him!" she fairly hissed at Mr. Friend. "Make him suffer! Put him behind the bars. I'm done with him forever. The time for forgiveness is past."

She was all a-tremble now. Her fingers twitched convulsively. Tears welled into her eyes, only to dry up again and leave them stony.

It isn't often that a woman is called upon to face the loss of $200,000 in diamonds, to say nothing of her faith in the man in whom she has confided.

Beer was served. She drank again and again without seeming to know what she was doing. She rolled her handkerchief up into a tiny ball and then spread it out. Her anger was fine, for it was real.

Mother Tries to Soothe Her.

Her cheeks were aflame. Her mother tried to stem the tide of her anger by remarking: "Well, May, we didn't go against such as this in London, but you really ought to compose yourself."

This remark was not soothing.

"Let her say what she wishes," put in Mr. Friend. "It can do no harm now."

"That's right," cried Miss Yohe. "He was sneaking off from me all the time. Why look here, here's the wedding ring which we were to have married with on Sept. 26."

Miss Yohe pointed to a slender circlet of gold on her finger, guarded by another ring set with two giant diamonds.

"Oh, no, not that one," sneered Miss Yohe, pointing to the diamond one. "He would have taken that too if he could have got it off my finger.

"Now, to be frank, he pawned six pieces of my jewelry with my consent. But these were not in New York. We were behind on our last month's bills in Yokohama and I gave three pieces of my jewelry to pawn, a bracelet set with large diamonds, a diamond necklace and a diamond and sapphire necklace. This allowed us to leave in good style with all debts paid.

"When we were near Genoa, he came to me with a handful of chits—Oriental for checks—and said, 'Dearie, I've been playing a bit high and I'm gone broke.'

"'Never mind,' said I, 'wire Mr. Friend to sell some of our shares.'

"But Mr. Friend answered that they were below par and that it wouldn't be advisable, so I gave three more pieces to pawn—my diamond bracelet with three rows of stones, my pearl tiara and my big diamond heart. He got $1000. This gave him a surplus of money with which to get to New York and this was the roll which he flashed on the reporters.

Ordered Eight Dresses Day He Departed.

"Yet he was kind and nice and affectionate to me all the time. The very day he left he ordered me eight more dresses, but didn't leave a cent to pay for them. After luncheon, after he told me of his mother's illness, which was a lie, he said, 'Now, dearie, don't go up through the tunnel. The automobile will take you uptown,' and he went up to the Harlem station with me."

"I guess I'm a pretty clever mind reader," put in Mrs. Yohe. "I said in the beginning that a man who goes between a husband and wife is no good to be followed."

"Hush, mother," laughed Miss Yohe, half hysterically. "Even then I stood by him, I stood by him after I had heard that he had been out in other places without me. But I thought everything was all right in the safe deposit vault. Now I want justice."

"Well, it's too bad you are not Lady Hope," said Mrs. Yohe.

"Sh'h," her daughter responded. "He's going to be married again and he's a gentleman at least."

Meanwhile Mr. Friend had been telephoning in many directions. He found the jewelry at Goldstone's pawnshop. Goldstone admitted advancing money to young Strong for a month past on jewelry.

Some $100,000 worth were there pawned for exactly $7100. These pieces are a diamond belt, two diamond bracelets and a diamond and emerald bracelet, a diamond pin and ring, a diamond necklace with heart pendant, a diamond and emerald brooch, three lace and jewelled fans, one diamond chatelaine and a diamond swallow pin.

"He only got a pittance on each piece," said Mr. Friend. "The brooch cost 9000 pounds and is worth now $50,000; yet Strong pawned it for $2500. All he got on the superb diamond necklace was $1500.

Relatives of Strong have declined to say what they will do towards helping him.

MARRIAGE FULL OF ROMANCE

Match Was Made by Mutual Friend Before Lovers, Who Can't Speak Same Tongue, Met.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., July 22.—The marriage of Miss Julia Bujouski, lately of Europe, and Joseph Mackaskey of Girard, Ill., which was remarkably romantic, has just been solemnized.

It was arranged while the couple were 9000 miles apart, and before they had ever met. The match was made by a friend.

When Miss Bujouski came to this country to consummate the contract the service of the mutual friend was still needed, for the lovers could not speak the same tongue. But Cupid overcame all obstacles and the lovers can talk with their eyes, if they can't with their mouths.

M'LAURIN REFUSES OFFICE.

Criticism Has Had Effect on the South Carolinan.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

OYSTER BAY, N. Y., July 22.—Senator McLaurin has declined to become judge of the United States Court of Claims to which President Roosevelt wished to appoint him. It is said he has been moved to this decision by the criticism of his course in deserting the party that elected him to office.

"Red Bird" Harris Dead.

MUSKOGEE, I. T., July 22.—R. B. Harris, known through the Territory as "Red Bird" Harris, one of the most prominent men of the Cherokee Nation, is dead at his home here. He was a lawyer, practicing in the United States courts, and was a brother of Chief Harris of the Cherokee Nation.

Gen. Wikoff Dead.

COLUMBUS, O., July 22.—Gen. Allen T. Wikoff, state canal commissioner, died today, aged 77 years. He had held many political offices. At one time he was secretary of state and later adjutant-general.

CUPID DOMICILDD IN HOTEL CORRIDOR

LAUNCHES HIS DARTS SUCCESSFULLY AT PLANTERS' EMPLOYES.

WEDDING SECRET TWO MONTHS

Miss Grayce League and E. A. Scott Married at Greenville, Ill.

Miss Grayce League and E. A. Scott have been married for nearly two months, and none of their St. Louis friends and acquaintances knew it until Monday evening, when the news leaked out.

The former conducted the Kinloch telephone exchange in the Planters' Hotel, while her husband was stationed only a few feet away and distributed mail matter to the hostelry's guests. They had large opportunitites for the exchange of tender glances, and they seized every one.

The meetings began at social gatherings, which excited no comment, and there they conceived the idea of being married in secret. Scott is a student at Baines Medical College and has been practicing in the Missouri Pacific Hospital, and when the lecture session closed for the summer he went to Greenville, Ill., where he has many friends, and arranged for the wedding to take place there, and but few trusty comrades be the wiser.

On May 28 he took Miss League to the Illinois town and Rev. Dr. Minton married them. The couple returned immediately to their places at the Planters' and resumed their duties as though nothing unusual had occurred. The story found its way out Monday, however, and many were the congratulations showered upon the bridegroom.

Both resigned their positions, and Mr. Scott will devote his entire time to the study of medicine. The bride is 19 and her husband is 22 years old.

Cotton Seed Oil Mills Combine.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

FORT WORTH, Tex., July 22.—S. B. Burbridge of Denver is here. He is negotiating a scheme to consolidate all the cottonseed oil mills in Oklahoma and Indian Territory, about twenty. The property is valued at $2,000,000. None of the Texas mills are included in the calculation.

MORGAN MEETS OBSTACLES

Delay in Completing Ship Combine Has Resulted in Rumor of a Possible Collapse.

(Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch.)

(Copyright, 1902, by the Press Publishing Co.)

LONDON, July 22.—The Daily Express says: "It was openly stated yesterday that the Morgan shipping combine was in danger of collapse, owing to the nonpayment of shares as arranged by Morgan's party.

"In an interview with a Daily Express reporter Sir Clinton Dawkins said:

"'There is no change whatever with regard to the combine. Everything has been signed, sealed and settled except the payment of the money and the taking up of the shares.

"'The reason this has not been done is on account of the coronation and the general confusion during June, which put the market in a bad state. We have plenty of time, as the contract states that the money must be paid over on or before Dec. 31.'"

The Express says that ship owners acquainted with the facts think there will be interesting developments in the near future.

CARDINAL LEDOCHOWSKI DEAD

He Was Prefect of the Congregation of the Propaganda of the Roman Church.

ROME, July 22.—Cardinal Ledochowski, prefect of the congregation of the propaganda of the Roman Church, died this morning, after a long illness.

Cardinal Ledochowski was born at Cork, Oct. 29, 1822, and was the descendant of an illustrious Polish family.

The Pope, on learning of Cardinal Ledochowski's death, was greatly distressed and exclaimed:

"A valiant fighter for the church and religion has gone. His memory be blessed."

The pontiff then knelt and prayed for the repose of the cardinal's soul.

With Cardinal Ledochowski's death, Cardinals San Stefano and Parocchi are the only surviving cardinals created by Pope Pius IX.

Their Words Stuck.

From the New York Times.

When Mark Twain was in Egypt he one day arranged with a friend to meet him at one of the pyramids. The latter engaged two old but experienced Arabs to guide him to the place. He afterward complained that, although he had some knowledge of their native language, he could not understand anything that his guides had said to him.

"You should have hired younger men," Mr. Clemens told him. "These toothless old fellows talk only gum Arabic."

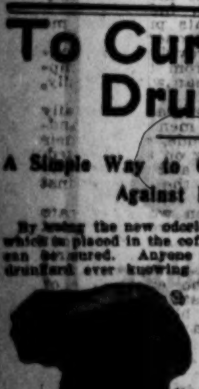
To Cure Drunkards.

A Simple Way to Cure Any Drunkard Against His Will.

By using the new odorless and tasteless remedy, which is placed in the coffee or food, any drunkard can be cured. Anyone can use it without the drunkard ever knowing it. It does its work so silently and surely that while the devoted wife, sister, daughter or mother looks on, the drunkard is cured even against his will.



Mrs. Samuel Boyd.

Every person who has a loved one who is a slave to drink ought to give them this remedy at once.

Mrs. Samuel Boyd says: "With Golden Specific I cured my husband of drinking. I put it in his coffee and after that he could not drink liquor or bear to be where he could smell it."

Write to Dr. J. W. Haines, 3371 Glenn Building, Cincinnati, Ohio, and he will send you a free trial package which will show you how simple it is to use and how positive in its cure.

Full size boxes of Golden Specific are for sale in St. Louis by Wolff-Wilson Drug Co., Sixth and Washington av.

HAIR NATURALLY ABUNDANT.

When It Is Free of Dandruff, It Grows Luxuriantly.

Hair preparations and dandruff cures, as a rule, are sticky or irritating affairs that do no earthly good. Hair, when not diseased, grows naturally luxuriantly. Dandruff is the cause of nine-tenths of all hair trouble, and dandruff is caused by a germ. The only way to cure dandruff is to kill the germ; and, so far, the only hair preparation that will positively destroy that germ is Newbro's Herpicide—absolutely harmless, free from grease, sediment, dye matter or dangerous drugs. It allays itching instantly; makes hair glossy and soft as silk. "Destroy the cause, you remove the effect"—dandruff.

SPECIAL NOTE [illegible]

PUGILISM BLACKSMITH READY FOR THE BOILERMAKER. BASEBALL PIRATES TO OPEN A FIVE-GAME SERIES. RACING KINLOCH TRACK OFFICIALS NAMED. TENNIS

KINLOCH'S OPENING IS NOW ASSURED

Meeting of Yesterday Elected Officers and Named All Racing Officials, Except the Judge.

KINLOCH OFFICIALS.

Joseph D. Lucas, president.
J. S. Bratton, vice-president.
Phil Chew, secretary and treasurer.
P. J. Carmody, general manager.
Clem Creveling, racing secretary.

Kinloch Jockey Club's opening for two weeks' racing, to start Aug. 15, is now an assured fact.

At a meeting held yesterday afternoon at 213 North Eighth street the officers named above were elected.

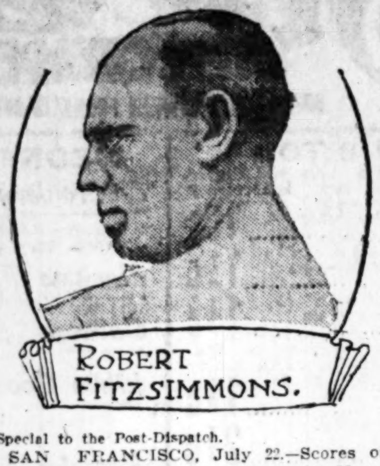
N. M. McFarlane of Memphis is spoken of as probable judge and Dwyer and Holtman will do the starting.

All of the parties in the list of officials named have at one time or another been connected with racing interests in various parts of the country.

The meeting will be conducted under the auspices of the old Kinloch Jockey Club, though several of the members now connected with the organization are newly connected there.

Mr. Lucas was formerly president of the old association and was one of the original promoters of the club.

BIG FIGHTERS READY FOR THE CHAMPIONSHIP MILL AT FRISCO



ROBERT FITZSIMMONS.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 22.—Scores of spectators who see Fitz work in the Olympic Club are not satisfied with his condition. The ex-champion appears old and jaded at the end of his exercising. The same worn appearance was noticeable at the end of his run through the park this morning.

It was the more marked to those who had watched Jeffries in his work, showing all the vigor of youth in everything he did and being apparently fresh at the end of his labors, as though he had done nothing arduous.

What little betting has been done has been at odds of 10 to 4, but there have been a few small wagers. The Jeff men are not disposed to offer better figures, and there seems to be no Fitzsimmons money in sight. One reason for the fact that there is no betting on the mill is that there are persistent rumors that have been circulated diligently since the match was first made. The most conservative of these charge the managers of the two fighters with an agreement no more reprehensible than a division of the purse, win or lose.

"OLD MAN HAS HIS PUNCH—FITZSIMMONS."

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 22.—My one ambition is to regain the championship of the world, and I will go into the ring determined to conquer. My condition is good and I hope to demonstrate that I am not a has-been. I was not myself when Jeffries defeated me. This will be proved in the ring on Friday night. Just say that the old man has not yet lost his punch nor the knowledge of how to deliver it.

ROBERT FITZSIMMONS.

"WILL BE ON EDGE"—JEFFRIES.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 22.—My condition is as near perfect as can be and without doing any more hard work I will be right on edge Friday night. Without wanting to boast, I can simply say that the fight I put up with Fitzsimmons on Friday night will be the best of my life, and having defeated him once, there is no reason why I should be "scared" now.

I have improved since I won the championship from Bob, while he was then at his best. The fight probably will be short and fast, although that will be determined by the events as they shape themselves in the ring.

JAMES J. JEFFRIES.

Jeffries the Boilermaker and Fitz the Blacksmith Report at San Francisco in Perfect Condition for the Hammer-and-Anvil Battle for the Championship of the World, to Take Place July 25.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

OAKLAND, Cal., July 22.—Jeffries' work for his fight with Fitzsimmons may now be said to be completed. The big fellow is on edge, and will spend the balance of the time between now and Friday in building up.

He will take daily exercise, but it will not be of the heroic order. There will be no further effort to reduce his stock of flesh. On the other hand Delaney will see that the champion increases rather than decreases his avoirdupois. The trainer likes a man "fit," but at the same time he wants him full of nerve and fiber. Delaney is a firm believer in substance."

"If a man has not a sufficient quatity of muscle on hand he will find the fires in the boiler running low when he most wishes to generate steam," he remarked today. "Jeffries knows his powers of administering and receiving punishment. He is aware that he can punch harder than any man that breathes, and knows that he can digest rougher knocks than other man. He is so strongly built that he is, compared to Fitz, like a heavily armored modern battleship beside one of the old-time fighting machines.

"His ability to digest punishment has never yet been tested to the extreme, but in the previous fight with Fitz he took more and harder knocks than any man who had before that gone against the Cornishman."

Kennedy, Jeffries' sparring partner, will be glad when the last blow of the training has been struck. He is a big, good natured fellow, and a very clever boxer. He does not like the blows that Jeff pours on him, however, and is not at all slow in declaring so.

Jeff does not take much stock in the stories told of Graney having promised Fitz that he would disqualify a man who repeated clinching. He attaches no importance to the other story that a tap with the shoulder would be considered a foul. In the first mill between the big fellows there was no talk of foul, and it is not likely there will be in the approaching one, although Fitz appears anxious to lay a foundation for a claim before the contestants step into the roped arena.

Jeff arose at o'clock this morning feeling stronger and better than he has at any time during his present training. The easy work of the past few days has braced him up ,and he now scales 210 pounds stripped.

When he stepped into the ring on June 9, 1899, to meet Fitzsimmons he tipped the beam at 216. He has developed considerably since that.

"What will Jeff weigh on next Friday?" was asked of the veteran trainer.

'Somewhere between 213 and 202," was the answer. "He has built up, as you see, during the past few days. All I can say is that I am now thoroughly satisfied with his condition. He appreciates that he was down too light, and is congratulating himself on his increased weight."

Yesterday the champion spent a few hours at the baths. He then took dinner and returned at 8:30 o'clock. He slept until about 9 this morning. After breakfast he went to Lake Merritt, where he spent a few hours on the road sprinting for the purpose of increasing his speed. This afternoon he exercised in his gymnasium by putting on the gloves with Kennedy and Brother Jack.

JAMES J. JEFFRIES.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 22.—This afternoon Oakland business men will be given an opportunity to see James J. Jeffries travel eight rounds with his brother Jack and Joe Kennedy, who is assisting the big man in his training work. The exhibition will take place at the Reliance Club and admission will be by card.

Once more Manager Billy Delany announces that his protege is in the finest fettle and will climb through the ropes Friday night fit to fight for a republic. Jeffries is alternating the days of heavy work. To avoid a "stale" feeling the champion goes at his work like a Trojan on one day and on the next relaxes somewhat. This method he finds agrees with him nad it keeps him on a vigorous edge.

Jeffries has taken on nine pounds in 36 hours, but this is not extraordinary for a man of his herculean proportions. The kingpin fighter now weighs in the neighborhood of 225 pounds. He expects to tip the beam at near 217 when he fights. Jeffries will continue his training in this city today, doing road work in the park and light gymnasium exercises at the Olympic Club.

The canvas-covered pavilion in which the contest will take place is nearly complete. The platform for the ring is in place and a sort of wooden canopy to hold the lights has been built over it. The arena is of octagonal shape, with all the seats built on the ground except the gallery, which consists of eight tiers of boards similar to the bleachers at a ball ground, rising at an angle that will give all occupants an uninterrupted view of the encounter. To economize space as much as possible the seats have been placed very close together and the distance from the center of the ring to the most distant part of the inclosure is only 87 feet.

GOOD HANDICAP AT DELMAR TRACK TODAY

Actine and Ethylene Entered in Fourth Event for Three-Year-Olds and Upward--Race Is Six Furlongs.

BY R. D. WALSH.

The feature of this afternoon's races at Delmar will be a handicap at six furlongs for 3-year-olds and upward.

The sensational mare, Actine, who won at 100 to 1 about two weeks ago, is among the entries in this race, and Ethylene, the pride of Missouri, will be another of the contenders.

The most prominent of the other candidates are Joe Martin, Croix d'Or and Father Wentker. July 17 Wentker defeated Joe Martin, the former carrying 99 and the latter 111 pounds. On that occasion Wentker won by a length. They meet today with a difference of only seven pounds in favor of Wentker.

Martin puts up four and Wentker nine over their previous race. This rearrangement of the weights today puts these two horses on an equal basis, and it is hard to choose between them. Wentker will be ridden by Singleton and Dale will probably have the mount on Joe Martin, and in the matter of jockeys Joe Martin will be better equipped than Wentker.

They say Actine will not mind ten or eleven pounds additional of weight over her last race, but that remains to be seen. As the last straw breaks the camel's back, so every additional pound put on a horse in a handicap lessens his chances of victory. Even with 113 pounds up Actine has an advantage over Ethylene in weight of six pounds, according to the scale.

ETHYLENE.

With hardly an exception Ethylene is, just now, the best race mare in Missouri at six or seven furlongs, and the bush horse Actine will have a hard time trying to beat her. As between Ethylene and Father Wentker at even weights, I would unhesitatingly go to the former because I believe she is much higher class and has far more speed than the Schreiber animal.

Follow will make his debut here today in the handicap, but judging by his performances he has no chance to win. Amigari has tried repeatedly and with lighter weight and has not been successful, so that she cannot be selected to win against this company. Bengal, with 107 pounds up, will hardly do. Actine and Joe Martin beat him easily when he only carried 101.

I think this handicap will narrow down to a struggle between Ethylene, Joe Martin and Actine, and of these I prefer the chances of the former for reasons already given. Actine's forte is as a finisher, and I think she will probably beat out Joe Martin for the place. Father Wentker has a good chance of taking third money away from Martin.

A dozen 2-year-olds will open the game today with a race at five and a half furlongs. They are a poor lot. On his race July 16, Doc Wood looks the best. On that occasion he ran a good second to Crime and beat a field of ten, including Bridal March, Welcome Light, Harold Parker and Dr. Kammerer.

He will carry the same weight today as he did then, and if he runs as good a race he should capture the first event. There are some newcomers entered in this race on which there is no line. Tribes and Lady Philura figure the best of the others, but as in yesterday's opening race a long shot may come to the front and win.

THE SECOND RACE.

A nice lot of dromedarys are entered in the second, but there might be a Locochee among them. Omelia has made some pretensions to racing ability occasionally, and if she has any at all the opportunity is here presented to her. Mr. Pomeroy and Belle Simpson look to be her most dangerous opponents, and should be second and third.

It is difficult to tell whether Censor is better in the mud than on a dry track. In any case he is in good form just now and will make it interesting for his opponents in the third race.

Reducer is also comfortably fixed as regards weight, having five pounds off his last race, when he ran third. He likes the distance and is good at present.

Cherished is another newcomer, but she has been racing on the Chicago tracks, and comes here with a smart reputation.

If the distance were longer I think her chances would be much better. June 10 she won a race at Harlem at a mile and a hundred yards in easy style and again June 17 she won at a mile and an eighth in 1:55.

The Boer should be a contender for first honors in this race as he has been doing well recently.

THE FIFTH RACE.

The fifth race looks like a soft spot for Tickful. He won at this distance by five lengths last Thursday and with less weight up today I can see no good reason why he should not repeat his victory.

Leenja, with only 87 pounds in the saddle, should have a good chance and El Caney, if he has top weight, will probably show.

The last race looks like a duel between Menace and Josie F. The Fizer mare has not been out now for almost two weeks and the rest should have considerably improved her.

Menace is decidedly the class of the race, but during the present racing season she has been an unreliable proposition. Fit and good she should easily capture this race today. Zasel is so slow to get going that it will be almost a miracle if she should catch Menace in the stretch, but if she does she will win.

Nettie Regent is rounding to nicely and should get third money.

Maggie had speed to loan yesterday and was at the tempting odds of 15 to 1. That fact, of course, had nothing to do with her victory, but it is really remarkable how much faster some horses run when they are at long odds than when they are favorites.

POOR RIDE FOR CLYDE.

Larry Wilt won the last race in a canter from Kitty Clyde. If Kitty had had a good rider up she would have been returned the winner.

Previous to yesterday Clopton's last race was July 10 in which she finished sixth to a poor lot, six furlongs in 1:16½, and ran by her in about 1:17¼ over a fast track. She covered this distance yesterday over a track that was slower in 1:15½, so that her performance showed a decided improvement, or rather a marked reversal of form.

I think there is little doubt that Lillian would have run much better if the odds against her had been 4 or 5 to 1 instead of even money. Certain horses have strong objections to winning unless the price against them is such that it will insure them the purchase of their supply of oats in case of victory. Lillian is one of these wise horses. Maggie Clopton herself is a shining example of this weakness, if it may be called so.

Very few, if any, believe that Maggie Clopton is as good as Lillian M., yet she made the latter look cheap yesterday. Lillian's defeat may be accounted for by the fact that she acted badly at the post and was the most prominent in all the breakaways, but it is noticeable that when she loses she invariably acts this way, and when she wins she manages to get off well and is as gentle as a lamb at the post.

Yesterday's racing was good and clean with the exception of the second race, in which Lillian M. showed a sudden and unexpected reversal of form. Wednesday last she ran this same distance with three pounds more weight up and won galloping by five lengths Yesterday she never went to the front and was beaten a block by Maggie Clopton.

Haley Bros. sprung a "good thing" in the first race in Marchioness, whose closing price was 6 to 1. She just managed to win from Welcome Light by a nose.

SEIZE WON AT 7 TO 1.

Seize won the six-furlong race for 2-year-olds and was quoted at 7 to 1. I selected this fellow to win yesterday and those who followed my advice must have profited largely.

W. B. Gates won the handicap easily. He is now the best handicap horse at Delmar and is equally at home on a fast or heavy track. It is a pity that he is a gelding for otherwise he would be a very valuable horse for stud purposes. Schwalbe did not run up to her mark. She is apparently sore and stiff and not at her best.

Sweet Dream won another race for Gumpertz and Powers, but she did not appear to be played very much, as she went up in the betting.

Peter Duryea ran a bad race, finishing last.

The Oak Hills defeated the Nonpareils Sunday by a score of 18 to 6. The feature of the game was the battery work of Keyes and Walsh for the Rose Hills.

2 NEW PITCHERS FOR BATTLES WITH PIRATES

Donovan Signed Currie of Cincinnati and Harry Kane of St. Louis and Springfield Yesterday to Make Their Debut Against Pittsburg.

"Stand by to repel Pirates" will be the battle cry at League Park this afternoon—a slogan which is rather inconsistent, seeing that the Cardinals are likely to gain very little through standing by.

Fred Clarke and his buccaneers from Pittsburg will make five assaults on the St. Louis team, beginning this afternoon, and, in the weakened state of the local club's defenses, it will take something in the shape of a miracle to prevent visitors from taking a majority of games.

Donovan's cheerfulness over the fancied improvement in the condition of his pitching staff was only ephemeral, and Murphy's defeat of yesterday and the announcement that Wicker had suffered a relapse, put him on the anxious seat for the immediate future of his club. To face Pittsburg with a pitching staff of Yerkes, O'Neil and Popp, did not excite his hopes, not so that it could be noticed.

Accordingly, Donovan scratched gravel, and by the time the afternoon had given way to night two new pitchers were announced as belonging to the local club—Clarence Currie of Cincinnati and Harry Kane of St. Louis and Springfield.

Must Make Debut Against Pittsburg.

They have the respect and the sympathy of the public.

Any pitcher who is expected to make a debut against Pittsburg deserves sympathy. Murphy and Wicker will hardly be able to work during the week, and Yerkes and O'Neil cannot do it all. Messrs. Currie and Kane will have to take up their burdens and tote a heavy load.

Yerkes is scheduled to work in the opening contest this afternoon, which, by the way, is a postponed game, and not one of the regular series. If he is not just right, Pitcher Currie may have his anxious anticipation relieved by being put in the box at once.

Currie is a slight young man, with what the ladies in the grandstand will say are "such lovely eyes"—if he happens to come close enough for them to see.

If looks count for anything they should find the plate readily enough. Manager Bancroft of the Cincinnati team said he expected Currie to make good, but that's what we say about anything we have to dispose of. Cincinnati had six pitchers on its staff, however, and it is barely possible that Currie was released to St. Louis not because he was only indifferent as a pitcher, but because the department numbered too many.

Kane, the St. Louis twirler, has been doing well for the Springfield (Mo.) club and for a California team, with which he recently played. Billy Mulhall says he can make Beaumont bat like Umpire Tom Brown once did when he played for the St. Louis club.

Murphy's Arm in Bad Shape.

Eddie Murphy, who was batted out of the box in the eighth inning of yesterday's game, and who pitched for the entire time solely with his head, may be out of the game for a long period, if his suspicions regarding the injury to his arm prove correct.

Murphy said he was certain, after his effort to pitch yesterday, that it was more than a cold that was bothering his arm and thought he had probably strained a muscle.

During his term in the box against the Reds he had nothing—neither speed nor curves—and lobbed the ball over in such a fashion that it appeared Cincinnati should have killed every dispensation that went near the plate.

As it was, he was hit freely throughout the contest and only good luck averted serious disaster earlier in the game. For a time it did appear that Eddie might steal through the battle without being seriously damaged, but in the seventh Sam Crawford's home run started a batting bee which was cut off at one run in that round, but which was resumed in the eighth and four runs hammered out.

Murphy then gave way to Popp, who pitched in such fashion for two innings that nine like them might beat the Pirates.

Poole, formerly of the Pirates, worked for the Reds. Evidently association with the crack staff of the country has borne fruitful results in Poole's case, for he twirled in effective fashion. In the seventh ahd ninth he was touched up smartly and two runs resulted, but otherwise the Cardinals were at sea when at bat.

VARICOCELE AND STRICTURE

CURED WITHOUT OPERATION OR DETENTION FROM BUSINESS.

I cure Varicocele by my new and original method of treatment, which is free from surgery, and is a safe, painless and permanent cure. Under my treatment every trace of weakness and disease quickly disappears, the stagnant blood is driven from the dilated veins, a healthy circulation of pure blood to the wasted organs is established, you are strengthened in every way and soon will possess that confidence, power and sense of well being which accompany good health and robust manhood. I have the very quickest, safest and most reliable cure for Varicocele known to medical science. Normal circulation is re-established throughout the pelvic region and perfect manhood is restored.

Every sufferer from stricture is familiar with the many annoying and distressing symptoms which accompany this disease. My cure for Stricture is safe, painless and permanent and free from surgery in any form. It acts immediately and directly upon the stricture, dissolving it completely and dislodging all diseased tissue, which comes away in strips of threadlike fiber, always allays all irritation and inflammation, leaving the canal entirely free from obstruction. The pelvic organs are invigorated and a complete restoration to normal health is perfected. I will take pleasure in explaining the many advantages my modern, advanced treatment has over the old-time methods still employed by ordinary doctors.

Other Diseases Which Dr. King Cures Are:

Loss of Manly Vigor, Unnatural Discharges, Contagious Blood Poison, Scrofula, Rheumatism, Kidney, Bladder and Prostatic Troubles, Rupture and Piles.

Bobby Wallace interfered with the progress of the St. Louis Browns toward first place in the American League pennant scramble yesterday. With the score tied in the eighth inning of the game with Washington on the latter's grounds Wallace attempted a double play after retiring a runner at second. His throw to Anderson to catch Clark almost hit the dog star, and Clark chased around to third before Anderson recovered the ball. The big first baseman then followed in the footsteps of Wallace, and shot the ball wild to the plate, Clark scoring the winning run.

But for Joe Sugden Anderson's throw would have gone into the left field bleachers. Sugden jumped from the players' bench and stopped the ball.

Had Washington failed to win, Joe's interference might have been made the basis of a protest, as he was not in the game.

The game was largely played by Jack Powell and Pitcher Orth for the Senators. Powell pitched as he can when he is right and the Senators made but six safe hits. St. Louis was almost as bad off with eight recorded, Powell getting two of them. Heidrick, who was reported in Washington, was not in the game.

St. Louis' sole run was made in the second inning on a base on balls off McCormick and Padden's double.

Washington's first score was also made by Clark, who hammered out a home run in the third inning.

NEWS IN NEARBY CITIES

TWO ASLEEP ON THE TRACKS

Samuel Briscoe and Daniel Hitger Knocked Off by Freight Trains on Different Railroads.

Two men went to sleep on railroad tracks near Belleville Monday night. Both were struck by trains, but will recover.

Samuel Briscoe, who is employed on the Suburban Electric Railway, while walking along the Louisville & Nashville Railroad reached a trestle, sat down and fell asleep. A freight train knocked him into the ditch. He was taken to St. Elizabeth's Hospital at Belleville. He was severely bruised about the back and his spine was slightly injured.

Daniel Hitger, a farmhand, who works near Shiloh, had been to a picnic at Shiloh. He started to walk home along the track of the Southern Railway, became tired and sat down on the end of a crosstie.

He fell asleep and a freight train knocked him from the track. He was taken to the county farm, where it was found that he had received severe injuries to his hip.

LIGHTNING EVEN AT BURIAL

Interment of Two Children Killed by the Fiery Bolt Was Interrupted by a Thunder Storm.

Louise and Christian Musskopf, the girl and boy who were struck by lightning and instantly killed near Millstadt, were buried Monday in the Millstadt Cemetery.

The interment of the children was accompanied by flashes of lightning and the crashing of thunder. Almost a panic was created.

The funeral was more largely attended than any held in the village for years. The services were conducted at the Evangelical Church by Rev. John Bruse.

Just as the procession reached the cemetery a severe thunderstorm came up. Lightning flashed vividly and there were terrible peals of thunder. Ladies and children were severely frightened and the exercises were interrupted.

The pallbearers were schoolmates of the unfortunate children, as follows: Sophia Probst, Frieda Bender, Katie Hamburger, Lizzie Hamburger, Clara Musskopf, Emma Musskopf, Charles Frank, Oscar Bender, Paul Musskopf and Oscar Musskopf.

EAST SIDE UNEASY.

Fear That Through Trolley Across Bridge Will Injure Business.

At the meeting of the city council of East St. Louis Monday evening it was expected that action would be taken on the application of the East St. Louis & Suburban Electric Railway Co. for permission to connect its tracks with the tracks of the bridge line, but the committee to which it had been referred was not ready to report.

A petition was received, signed by business men, demanding that the company be required to give a straight 5-cent fare across the bridge.

Their idea is that if the 5-cent fare is contingent on a person riding on an East St. Louis car and purchasing a coupon, passengers will not stop in the business portion of East St. Louis, but will continue across to St. Louis.

PROSPECTIVE RAIN STRENGTHENS GRAIN

SHORTS BUYING ON UNSETTLED WEATHER WEST.

ADVANCE IS LED BY WHEAT

Cables Report Little Decline Abroad—Smaller Receipts Advance Oats—Corn Dull.

BY GEORGE D. L. KELLEY.
Grain.

None of yesterday's weakness was to be found in the speculative markets this morning. Shorts were alramed by a prospective change to rains, and they were rather keen buyers, of both wheat and oats especially. Corn did not attract much attention, which centered chiefly in wheat.

WHEAT—A probable change in the weather and comparatively well-sustained markets abroad led to better buying at the opening, and as offerings were small the market was strengthened thereby. The barometer had fallen in the West, a well-defined "low" of unusual proportions covering the country from the Mexican to the British lines and clouding up, with promise of rains. This was the most impressive condition, but the fact that Liverpool had declined only ¼d and Paris ⅛c, the weather in both England and France of an unfavorable character also, had quite a bullish effect, too. These two bullish influences offset the very large receipts, which at St. Louis were 279,300 bu, compared with 164,700 bu one year ago, and Kansas City had 344,000 bu, against 78,000 bu last year. Nor did declines in other markets have any sensible effect.

Shorts were the principal buyers, they opening September where it closed yesterday at 68⅜@68½c and advancing it to 68⅝c. July was for sale by longs and the weakest of the options opening 1-16 better at 69½c, selling off at 69¼c back to 69½c. December sold at 70½c to 70⅝c.

The buying continued unabatedly steady for some time, largely for short account through fear of the effects rain might have. Most conspicuous as buyers were T. W. Carter & Co. and Schreiner-Flack. The selling was mainly by the elevator people against cash and to arrive purchases though some good selling said to be for Chicago. The elevator selling was so free at the advance that it for a time checked the upward tendency, but strengthened later.

September advanced to 68⅞@69c, fell back to 68¾c and then went to 69c. December had 70¾c bid. For July 69¼@69⅝c was bid and later offered at 69¾@69½c.

Late cables reported Liverpool closing at declines of ⅛@¼d for the day and Buda Pesth was off 1½c, but Paris ¼c and Berlin ⅜c higher. Bradstreet's report on the world's available supplies was regarded as bullish, showing over 1,900,000 bu decrease, against 650,000 bu increase a year ago, but primaries were larger than a year ago. Primary receipts were 1,096,000 bu, against 897,000 bu a year ago, and shipments 959,000 bu, against 894,000 bu last year. Clearances of flour and wheat were 365,000 bu.

CORN—Although Chicago declined at the opening, the St. Louis market held up well, the stronger tone to wheat and the strength in oats having a sustaining effect, as did the weather probabilities and the small receipts here. These were 20,700 bu, against 80,400 bu a year ago. Speculative interests still very small, neither buyers or sellers conspicuous to any extent, but more edge to the buying than the selling.

December was the only month traded in, selling steadily at 40⅛c. For September 52¼@52⅜c higher bid.

It appeared impossible to arouse speculative interest in corn. Crop prospects were so concededly fine and the rains expected to be more beneficial than harmful, which they certainly would be, that no one save very timid shorts favored buying. There was very little for sale, however, the stronger turn in all grain "shooing" most bears away from the selling side.

This finally caused September to sell up to 53c, under some urgent buying that came in. For December 40¼c was bid.

Primary receipts were 431,000 bu, against 399,000 bu a year ago, and shipments 582,000 bu, against 394,000 bu last year. Clearances were 14,000 bu.

OATS—A sharp demand came for July this morning, a decided drop in receipts, 29,90 bu arriving here, against 46,800 bu a year ago, the chief inciter of buying, but the fact that no contract oats in stock and that little show just now for any. The expected rainy weather was also an influence on that side.

July sold as high as 41c and September traded in at 28⅛c.

The only mention of oats in the pit during balance of the forenoon was a bid of 28¼c for September.

Primary receipts were 457,000 bu, against 257,000 bu a year ago, and shipments 88,000 bu, against 323,000 bu last year. Clearances, 2600 bu.

Trade Topics.

Foreign markets have not followed America's latest decline in wheat very closely. The response by Liverpool to the decline over 1c on this side since Friday's close has been a beggarly ⅜d, or less than ½c. Their steadily decreasing supplies, which already at the universally slow point, and the small shipments from exporting countries, are principal reasons for their comparatively well sustained values. Of the 5,663,000 bu shipped last week by exporting countries, 67 per cent was from North America, Russia and the Danubian ports, between them only exporting 1,720,000 bu. These small world's shipments caused the decrease last week of 2,560,000 bu in the amount on ocean passage. Yet, with all the small declines abroad, only occasional liberal purchases of wheat are being made on this side, these only for prompt shipment to tide foreign markets along until their own crops are available.

Broomhall cables: Affected by the easiness in the American markets at the close, wheat opened ¼d lower this morning and during the session further declined ⅛ and ¼d on realizing. There was no opening in corn, the market being neglected. Values showed declines of ¼ to ⅜d later in sympathy with wheat.

S. B. Miller, the Oswego (Kan.) miller, who was on 'Change, told the Post-Dispatch that prospects for the Kansas corn crop were simply immense. Of the wheat crop he says that while in quality, of course, not near what it was last year, when about everything graded No. 2, he did not believe over 10 per cent was this year unfit for milling.

There was 250,000 corn on the afternoon delivery in Chicago yesterday, all of which went to Harris-Gates. There were also 250 barrels of pork, 500 tierces lard and 200,000 pounds of short ribs.

Bradstreet's reported 372,000 bu increase last week in available stocks of wheat east of the Rockies, indicating 235,000 bu decrease at points outside the regular visible. European supplies afloat and ashore decreased 2,300,000 bu, so that the world's visible decreased 1,928,000 bu, where a year ago it increased 656,000 bu. The corn available increased 668,000 bu last week, against 792,000 bu decrease a year ago, and 667,000 bu increase last week in the regular visible. Oats available decreased 826,000 bu, against 1,145,000 bu decrease a year ago, 575,000 bu increase in the visible.

Among the more important decreases shown in Bradstreet's are 225,000 bu in Manitoba, 172,000 at Newport News, 149,000 at depot harbor, 125,000 in Minneapolis private elevators, 102,000 bu at Rochester, 58,000 at Portland. The increases are 419,000 bu in Chicago private elevators, 71,000 at Louisville, 55,000 at Akron, 50,000 at Chattanooga, 50,000 at Nashville.

Joseph Jackson of Chicago wires the Post-Dispatch Commercial: Think wheat is a sale, but there is a bull clique trying to manipulate September. Don't think they will succeed. Look for December wheat to sell at 65c.

FLOUR AND FEED.

Flour—Not so much doing, the advance in wheat shutting out exporters and little work in consequence. The demand from domestic sources continues small.

Quotations are as follows: New wheat flour—Patents, $3.40@3.45; straights, $3.25@3.35; extra fancy, $3.10@3.20. Old, 15c per bbl higher; old clear, $2.85@3; low grades, $2.60@2.75. Old hard wheat flour, in jute sacks—Patent at [illegible]; straight, [illegible]; clear, [illegible]; low grades at [illegible]. [illegible]

Foregoing prices for lots in wood from first hands, track or at depot this side. Orders higher.

RYE FLOUR—In a jobbing way at $3.15 in jute sacks, and $3.40 in wood for pure. Mixed and inferior less.

CORNMEAL, ETC.—F. o. b.: City meal at $3.15; grits, hominy and pearl meal at $3.50.

Lead and Spelter.

Lead holds firm. Chemical hard salable at $4 and soft Missouri held at that price. Desilverized nominally $4.05.

Spelter continues very strong at $5.05@5.10, latter for August.

GRAIN MARKETS BY TELGRAPH.

CHICAGO, July 22.—All grains continued the break of yesterday at the opening today, but rallied speedily. Wheat had the bearish influences of lower cables, fair weather and heavy receipts, offerings in July options early were free and depressed prices. The late weather map seemed to help in the rally. Showers which had been overlooked early began to have a little effect and predictions of more rain, especially in Kansas, turned sentiment bullish. In spite of the large receipts, contract stuff was only a fractional per cent. This helped Sept., which opened ⅛@¼c lower at 71⅛c to 71⅛@71⅜c, advanced to 72⅛c. Receipts, 438 cars, 9 contract; Minneapolis and Duluth reported 274 cars, a total for the three points of 712 cars, against 712 last week and 764 a year ago. Receipts at St. Louis and Kansas City were reported increasing bearishly.

Lower wheat prices, continued free movement of corn and the early weather reports started Sept. corn ⅛c to ¼c down at 60c to 60⅛c. Trade was only fair and there was little commission house buying early. The increase of 907,000 bu in contract stocks was very bearish. As wheat rallied there was a better demand in corn and Sept. rallied to 60⅝c. July opened ½c down at 65¼c and rallied to 65⅝c. Receipts, 469 cars, 61 contract grade.

Early trade in oats seemed to be a waiting game. Prices broke with the weather reports and the improved receipts. The break in other grains was some influence for free early offerings. A fair demand, however, was present and prices at once reacted above yesterday's closing figures. Sept. opened ⅛@¼c down at 33¼c and dipped to 33c, but soon advanced and steadied near 33⅝@33¾c. July was nominally 65c, but no trades were made early. Receipts, 184 cars, 40 contract.

Provisions were hammered by bears and were liberally liquidated early. Hogs were weak and influenced lower provision prices. Some support came in the pit, however, and prices rallied a little. Sept. pork opened 20c to 5c lower at $17.80 to $17.95 and steadied near $17.85; Sept. lard, 7½c to 2½c down at $10.67½ to $10.72½, and sold at $10.80, and Sept. ribs 7½c down at $10.60 and sold at $10.65.

LIVERPOOL, July 22.—Closing: Wheat—Spot No. 1 northern spring steady, 6s 4¼d; No. 1 California quiet, 6s 5d; futures quiet; July nominal; Sept., 6s 1¼d; Dec., 6s 1¼d. Corn—Spot firm; American mixed, 6s; futures quiet; Sept., 5s 2¼d; Oct., 5s 1¾d.

WALL STREET.

NEW YORK, July 22.—Opening movement of prices was exceedingly irregular. Heavy demand for Baltimore & Ohio had carried it up nearly a point. Metropolitan Street Railway rose 1¼, General Electric a point and Manhattan, New York Central and Wheeling & Lake Erie large fractions. New York Air Brake jumped 3. Rock Island fell nearly a point and there were losses amongst the grangers and the industrials.

A slight setback in some of the grain-carrying and soft coal stocks checked the rising market and dealings became smaller. New York Central was then bought in large blocks up to 164, an advance of 2¼, and there was a sympathetic rise to above 161 in Pennsylvania. Wisconsin Central preferred and People's Gas gained over a point and New York Air Brake made its rise 6. General Electric dropped 3½ below last night before it met support and rallied 2 points and there were a number of other specialties that were heavy, including United States Steel and Colorado Fuel. Southern Pacific came into active demand before noon and rose to 69 without stimulating other transcontinental stocks. Anaconda advanced 2 points and lost half of its rise. Delaware & Hudson improved 2⅝ and the Reading's large fractions on active dealings. The market was ragged and irregular at noon.

Bonds were irregular.

The market became steadier and prices hardened when the advance was resumed in some of the leading railroads and specialties which were notably strong yesterday. These included New York Central, Pennsylvania, Baltimore & Ohio, Hocking Valley, Missouri Pacific, Amalgamated, Metropolitan Street Railway and Manhattan, which gained a point or more. Rock Island, Chicago & Alton and Brooklyn Transit, which had been off important fractions, rallied to above yesterday's close and there were slight advances in Pacifics and low priced Southwesterns. Chicago & Eastern Illinois, Des Moines & Fort Dodge and Fuller Construction preferred rose a point.

General Electric reacted to 2 points below last night, and Westinghouse lost a point.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

I Am an Advertiser Great!

The secret of my fortune lies
In one small fact, which I may state,
Too many tradesmen learn too late—
If I have goods, I advertise!
Then people come
And people go
In constant streams,
For people know
That he who has good wares to sell
Will surely advertise them well;
And proudly I reiterate

I Am an Advertiser Great!

THROUGH a remarkable system of profit-sharing investment certificates, which are practically demand notes, six great industrial enterprises in St. Louis, working co-operatively, have increased their business over one thousand per cent, and their resources from a few thousand to hundreds of thousands of dollars in two years. The investors in those certificates received during the past year alone (1901) a total of 66 per cent in profits on their investment. Under this plan, the investor can withdraw part or all of his investment at ANY time he wishes, the same as though deposited in a savings bank, and take absolutely no risk. During 1901 three of these enterprises were a heavy source of expense. Now all of them are developed to the point of large profits, and one of them is the largest of its kind in the world. A new issue of these certificates, which promises to be even more successful than the last, is now being made, in order to develop a new enterprise. These certificates can be had in amounts of $100 or more. Write for full particulars and Bank References. Ad. M 83, Post-Dispatch.

MAIN FAIR GATE SITE IS CHANGED

Exposition Entrance Won't Be on Lindell Blvd.

CATLIN TRACT IS THE CAUSE

ITS OWNERS WOULD REAP BENEFIT FROM SUCH LOCATION.

After Refusal of Catlin Tract Owners to Accept Fair Officials' Offer Latter Do Not Want to Show Favors.

It is announced that the main entrance to the World's Fair grounds will not be on Lindell boulevard.

There may be a side entrance on that thoroughfare, but the principal gateway to the fair grounds may be on the Skinker road, the Clayton road, in Forest Park at the eastern edge of the fair grounds, in fact, anywhere but where it has been generally supposed that it would be—on Lindell boulevard.

This announcement, directly following the canceling of negotiations for the Catlin tract, is taken as significant.

The significance is that the World's Fair organization does not propose to "return good for evil" to the Parkview Realty Co.

The company refused to lease the property adjoining the World's Fair site on the north, just adjoining Lindell boulevard, except at a figure far in excess of that which the Fair people considered reasonable.

In return the Fair officials will refuse to establish a main entrance to the Fair facing the property of the company which declined to come to their terms.

There is a company called the Bay State Amusement Co. organized in connection with the Parkview Realty Co. Its interests are supposed to be largely identical.

If the main entrance to the Fair were located on Lindell boulevard, all Fair visitors would be compelled to pass over the grounds of the Bay State Amusement Co., and any amusement enterprises it might establish there would reap a rich harvest.

The World's Fair people do not care to contribute to the welfare of the Catlin tract owners, it is said.

ENGLAND WANTS DEATH DUTY

Hopes to Collect 8 Per Cent on What Mrs. Mackay May Inherit From Husband.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch.

(Copyright, 1902, by the Press Publishing Co.)

LONDON, July 22.—The chancellor of the British exchequer calculates on making a handsome haul out of the estate of John W. Mackay.

In legal circles it is considered a nice point as to whether the British government is or is not entitled to claim the death duty of 8 per cent on what Mrs. Mackay may inherit under her husband's will, since, though not naturalized, she is domiciled in England.

A death duty must be paid on all the testator's investments in English securities, which are said to reach nearly $10,000,000.

But Mr. Mackay's friend arrest that, foreseeing a prospect that his estate might be mulcted by the English treasury because his wife was domiciled here, he assigned to her four years ago the greater part of the fortune he intended to bequeath her, including his English investments, and that the balance of his fortune goes to his son, Clarence H. Mackay.

MILITIAMEN IN ANGRY MOOD.

Illinois Soldiers Threatened Riot, but Were Rounded Up.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., July 22.—Members of the Third Brigade, Illinois militia, were in a riotous mood last night. They threatened to demolish some houses and the full police detail was called out.

Fearing there were not enough police, the city authorities called for a provost guard from Camp Lincoln. This guard quickly rounded up the erring members of the command and trouble was avoided.

THE REIDS VISIT CARNEGIE.

They Will Sail for New York Next Saturday.

LONDON, July 22.—Mr. and Mrs. Whitelaw Reid returned to London today, after a tour of Scotland. Mr. Reid went by rail, meeting the remainder of his party at Skibo Castle, Sutherland, the seat of Andrew Carnegie, to which they had journeyed from London in an automobile. Mr. Carnegie, who is in excellent health, invited a large house party to meet Mr. and Mrs. Reid, and on their departure he drove them 10 miles to the railroad station in the four-in-hand coach with which the late James G. Blaine made his tour of Scotland. Mr. and Mrs. Reid will sail for New York Saturday, July 26. They have canceled most of their engagements, but will dine at Lord Rosebery's residence tonight.

MOB DRIVES OUT NEGROES.

Blackwell, O. T., Is Declared to Be a White Community.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

BLACKWELL, O. T., July 22.—The citizens of this community will not tolerate negroes here, as the action of a mob of 1000 persons indicates.

A negro family came here to live after having been served with notice that negroes were not wanted and might be treated violently. A few nights after their arrival a mob gathered and served notice they must leave the community. The negroes, although terrified, were not harmed. They promised to depart immediately and were allowed to do so.

POLITICIAN IS ACCUSED.

Democratic Congressional Nominee Is Charged With Larceny.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

GREENSBURG, Pa., July 22.—William S. Byers, prominent lawyer and Democratic nominee for Congress, has been arrested here on a charge of larceny.

Bonds worth $250,000 are said to be missing.

The information was made and sworn to by Jacob Byers, the reputed owner of the lost bonds and money, aged and infirm, and who has been unable to rise for several weeks from what is believed to be his deathbed. The information was made at the instance of old Mr. Byers by Rev. C. R. Ferner, attoreny in fact, before Justice of the Peace Lyman Loucks of Alverton. The bail bond was fixed at the sum of $250,000.

UNCLE SAM NOT AN "AD" MAN

World's Fair Canceling Stamp Cannot Be Used on St. Louis Mail.

The World's Fair canceling stamp that has been used by Postmaster Baumhoff for some time and which has advertised the Fair all over the country will have to stop its good work. Its use is contrary to the postal laws, and dispatches from Washington state that Postmaster Baumhoff will probably be requested to cease its use in a few days.

At the time of the Pan-American Exposition the Buffalo postmaster secured permission to use a canceling stamp to advertise the exposition. The idea became popular and requests came in from all over the United States asking the privilege of using such stamp cancelers to advertise small county fairs and other exhibitions of minor importance.

Because of this the postoffice department decided to refuse all such requests. The postmaster at Charleston was not allowed to use such a canceling stamp either before or during the exposition in that city.

IT'S IMPOSSIBLE

To Disprove Facts—It Is Decidedly Easy to Verify St. Louis Opinion.

Nothing by way of an introduction could be added to the experience and opinions given below which could increase their value. St. Louis people can safely be left to draw their own conclusions based on such convincing proof as this citizen offers. What is there lacking in evidence to satisfy a dyed-in-the-wool doubting Thomas?

Gustave F. Schoenfeld, crayon, pastel and India-ink artist, living at 225 S. Jefferson av., St. Louis, says: "It is hard to believe, and still harder to understand, that five or six doses of Doan's Kidney Pills procured at 'Wolff-Wilson's,' corner 6th and Washington av., cured me of pain in the back, attacks of which I had for four years. During that time I used more than one preparation, but the aching across the loins was always in evidence, particularly so if I stooped or brought any strain on the muscles of the back. I have been so that I could scarcely straighten for an entire week. From the condition of the kidney secretions I knew those organs were either excited or weakened, and when Doan's Kidney Pills put them in a good, sound, healthy condition, I am only too pleased to let other residents of St. Louis know that fact."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States.

KEROSENE FATAL TO THIS GIRL

USED IT TO START FIRE AND WAS BURNED.

HER CLOTHING BECAME IGNITED

Miss Lizzie Blankenship of 228 Market Street Was Preparing Breakfast When Accident Occurred.

In her effort to hasten the lighting of the kitchen fire, Miss Lizzie Blankenship of 228 Market street, was fatally burned Tuesday morning.

Miss Blankenship and her mother live in one room on the third floor of the building. They arose early to prepare breakfast. The girl became impatient because the coal did not ignite immediately and to hasten the preparation of the meal she poured a quantity of kerosene upon the kindling.

While she leaned over the stove, the flames flared through the openings, licked her face and set fire to her clothing. She screamed and fought and rushed about the room and through the halls, endeavoring to tear her clothing from her.

Officer Relley and persons in the building hastened to her assistance and as the girl was fainting succeeded in tearing away the flaming dress. Miss Blankenship was carried to the City Hospital, but the physicians say she cannot recover.

She was burned from head to feet.

DODDRIDGE IS PRESIDENT

St. Louis Terminal Depot Association Gives Offices to Four of Its Five Directors.

At a meeting Monday afternoon of the five incorporators and directors of the St. Louis Terminal Depot Association, which has asked bridge and terminal franchises worth millions of dollars from the Municipal Assembly, W. B. Doddridge was elected president, E. F. Goltra vice-president, M. M. Stephens secretary and J. C. Van Blarcom treasurer. T. F. Doremus is the other incorporator and director. He resides in New York, and is said to represent eastern capitalists. President Doddridge has made a study of the entire route asked for by his company, and states that a few changes will be made in the plans. Engineers are now engaged in mapping out these proposed changes.

Officers of the company say they will fight for the passage of the bill, no matter what opposition develops.
